U.S. TO TEST SYRIA PLAN

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry arrived in Geneva to test the seriousness of a Russian proposal to secure Syria's chemical weapons.

Mr Kerry and a team of experts will have at least two days meeting with their Russian counterparts and hope to emerge with an idea of how some 1,000 tons of chemical weapons stocks, materials and delivery systems can be isolated and destroyed.

Officials with Mr Kerry said they would be looking for a rapid agreement on principles for the process with Russians, including a demand for a speedy Syrian accounting of their stockpiles.

One official said the task is "doable but difficult."

The official said the U.S. is looking for signs of Russian seriousness and thinks it will know in a relatively short time if the Russians are trying to stall."

In an opinion piece published in The New York Times, Russian President Vladimir Putin wrote: "The United States, Russia and the international community must take advantage of the Syrian government's willingness to place its chemical arsenal under international control for subsequent destruction."

Mr Kerry plans to meet with Lakhdar Brahimi, the UN-Arab League envoy for Syria, before sitting down with the Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov.

Govt slammed for flogging off post

THE Government has confirmed it is pressing ahead with controversial plans to privatise the Royal Mail by selling shares, sparking claims it was "selling off the family silver".

By ALAN JONES
news@sundaysport.co.uk

Ministers said it was "very exciting" as details of a share sale were announced, but they were attacked by unions and opposition politicians.

Members of the public will be able to apply for shares – at a minimum of £750 – as well as institutional investors.

Analysts expect the sell-off will make up to £3BILLION.

The announcement comes ahead of a meeting of Communication Workers Union officials to discuss the sell-off and their plans for a strike ballot.

General secretary Billy Hayes said: "This isn't about what's best for the Royal Mail, it's about vested interests of government ministers' mates in the City.

"Privatisation is the worst way to access to capital as it's more expensive than borrowing under public ownership."

Chuka Umunna, the shadow business secretary said that: "Ministers are pushing ahead with this politically-motivated fire sale of Royal Mail to fill the hole left by George Osborne's failed plan.

"The Government has not addressed the huge concerns which remain on the impact the Royal Mail sale will have on consumers, businesses and communities, but ministers are ploughing on regardless."

Business minister Michael Fallon said: "It is the final step to help modernise the business and allow it to invest in the future."

'Sex ring' fiends are jailed for teen assault

THREE Asian men suspected of running an east London sex ring which preyed on girls in care have been jailed for a total of 24 years for raping a teenager.

Estate agent Naeem Ahmed, 24, Nabeel Ahmed, 25, and Hassan Raza, 23, took turns to abuse the 18-year-old after plying her with drink and drugs.

Naeem, ringleader and self-styled 'pimp', was arrested after police investigated concerns about suspected abuse of two girls under the care of Essex County Council.

When questioned by police about what he had done with one alleged victim, he bragged, 'Have you seen the Karma Sutra?'

Naeem was jailed for 14 years, Ahmed was given eight years and Raza was locked up for two years.

Six girls gave evidence about their involvement with the gang during a seven week trial at Snaresbrook Crown Court.

One girl aged 17, claimed she was held down and raped by two of the men after she agreed to work as a prostitute for Naeem Ahmed.

Naeem was said to have told her his 'love for her would grow' if she slept with other men for cash.

She also claimed she was raped by Nabeel Ahmed and his brother Jameel after being taken to a hotel.

A16-year-old claimed Naeem Ahmed told her to have sex with him because he needed 'to see how good you are in bed' but then asked her to work as a prositute.

The third girl, aged 18, was picked up in the street, after they watched her have an argument with her boyfriend.

She was taken to one of the men's sister's house there, where she was raped twice and sexually assaulted by a third man, despite her pleas.

The girl was first raped by Naeem Ahmed, also known as 'Ricky' before Nabeel Ahmed entered the room shortly after to rape her again.

Naeem Ahmed then went back in and told her 'I'm not done with you yet' and forced himself on her for a second time.

She told the jury: "I felt dirty. I just wanted to go home."

Naeem Ahmed and Hassan Raza, both of Barking, Essex, and Nabeel Ahmed, of Romford, Essex, denied all charges against them.

Anas Iqbal, of East Ham, east London, denied rape and was found not guilty of five of seven charges but now faces a retrial.

Twitter clears nine men of sex attacks

NINE men accused of a string of sex offences involving a teenage girl have walked free from court after the cases against them were dropped due to new evidence gleaned from Twitter.

There were sighs of relief from the dock and loud applause from the public gallery at the Old Bailey as the men were told they were discharged.

The men – Adedeji Atitebi, 21, Desmond Agyei, Edward Kofi Edunya, David Sarpong and Justin Maynard, all 23, Perry Murray, Austin Odisi, and Olanrewaju Sonde, all 24 and Thamsanqa Sibanda, 30 – had been charged with 28 offences, including several rapes. But the prosecutor told the judge there would be no evidence presented against them, after an old Twitter account used by the complainant – a then-14-year-old girl – had been examined at "the highest level" of the Crown Prosecution Service and the police.

It comes 48 hours after Coronation Street actor Michael Le Vell was cleared of 12 child sex offences at Manchester Crown Court.

The men, from London, remained silent as the judge recorded not guilty verdicts.

Speaking as he left the courtroom, Mr Sonde said: "It's just a relief that this is finally over."

Lady: Why I go Gaga over daring lezzas

RAUNCHY pop babe Lady Gaga says she's attracted to lesbians because "they are way more daring than straight guys."

The bisexual singer admitted: "I've taken a few dips in the lady pond. I like girls, I've said that.

"I know people think I just say things to be shocking, but I actually do like pussy. It just depends on whose pussy it is.

"For me, it's similar to how I feel about guys. It's more of an energy thing.

"I used to go to lesbian clubs all the time. I like them because I find lesbians to be way more daring than straight men, when it comes to coming on to you, and I really like that.

"And it wasn't until I found a guy that could come onto me as strong as a lesbian that I fell in love."

Gaga, 26, who has been dating American actor Taylor Kinney since 2011, also talked about her previous job as a stripper, saying: "I made more money stripping than waitressing."

Dodgy Saul is breaking away

CULT telly show Breaking Bad is to get its own SPIN-OFF series, studio bosses have announced.

The dark drug drama – which centres on a teacher who turns to meth peddling after being diagnosed with terminal cancer – is due to end later this month.

But fans are celebrating after key character Saul Goodman (above) – a cunning lawyer with a string of dodgy clients – was handed his own new story arc.

The off-shoot will be called Better Call Saul! – Goodman's infamous company catchphrase.

Bob Odenkirk, 50, who plays Saul, said: "This show is the golden goose and I'm just thankful I got a chance to be in it."

A spokesman for Sony Pictures AMC said Better Call Saul would be a 'prequel', taking place before the events of Breaking Bad.

Wills exit sparks panic

A STATE of emergency has been declared on the island of Anglesey in North Wales after it was revealed Prince William had completed his final shift as an RAF search and rescue helicopter pilot.

One anxious local resident told The Splurt: "Who will save me now, if my fishing boat sinks and I am swept out into shark-infested waters on a lilo with just a Topic bar and a can of Diet Coke to last me?

"Wills would have saved me, but who is there now? No one. He's the only one superhuman enough to keep us safe.

"He is not just a prince, he's a super-prince. Now he has gone, these shores will become lawless and dangerous. It's a tragedy."

A spokesman for Buckingham Palace confirmed the Pince had left his duties on Anglesey and added: "Typical. You had to interview the most senile old bint on the island to get a reaction, didn't you?

She's a loony, that one."

GUN LOBBY FURY AT CHEMICAL WEAPONS CRACKDOWN

MR SOFT: Obama (top) changed stance against Assad (right)

YANK pro-gun campaigners have said the proposed crackdown on Syria's chemical weapons is "un-American" and a breach of people's right to bear arms under the Second Amendment.

The Amendment to the US Constitution says it is everyone's right to carry weapons and, say a section of the Guns Are Great lobby group in Washington, it does not specify which weapons.

President Bashar al-Assad of Syria has come in for some flak for using chemical weapons against rebels trying to oust him from power. Hundreds of civilians, including children, died in the indiscriminate attacks.

President Barack Obama said the use of the weapons stepped over a line which should not be crossed, but when no-one joined in like they usually do, he was forced to soften his stance. But he still said he wanted to authorise a military strike to disable Assad's capacity to use his stockpile of chemical weapons.

Senator Freeman Hitler (no relation), who represents anyone who wants to shoot people, said: "This move by our President to deny Assad his rights to bear arms contravenes our most sacred constitutional amendment and is a direct violation of what we hold dear."

He added: "It don't make no difference if it's a schoolyard catapult or a moonshine jar of that sareen gas, we won't let him get away with this – it was bad enough when Obamee said he wanted to bring in gun control. This just shows that it was the thin end of the wedge."

Chuck Klinsmann, former sheriff of Spade County, West Virginia, said: "Country roads, take me home to the place where I belong. West Virginia, mountain momma..."

Bore-draw therapy

HIGHLIGHTS of England's match in the Ukraine on Tuesday night are being shown to hospital patients suffering from insomnia.

The NHS has distributed the highlights package of the goal-less bore draw to all of its Trust hospitals with advice to play them back to patients who are struggling to get to sleep.

An NHS spokesman said: "It's a much better – and cheaper – way to get people off than stuffing them with sleeping pills, which cost the earth.

"It even works on some of the most extreme cases of insomnia, although some get as far as Roy Hodgson's post match interview before they finally nod off. He has that effect, I'm afraid."

Gove slams Aldi shoppers

EDUCATION Secretary Michael Gove has said people who shop at Aldi "have lost control of their finances and should be shot".

The controversial Cabinet member, who pulled himself up by his bootstraps from lowly beginnings to achieve the dizzy heights of a political career in Westminster (his words, not ours) said: "I don't know why poor people can't save up and shop at Waitrose, like everyone else.

"It's no wonder our economy is in the crud when people can't perform the simplest of tasks – like planning financially for weekly dinner parties, nice black tie occasions and lodge meetings."

He said shopping at cheap supermarkets showed people had lost all sense of the value of overpried food and wine.

"Perhaps if they went to more upmarket stores and paid through the nose, they wouldn't be able to buy so many crisps and get so fat.

"That would only be good news for our overstretched health service."

TV watchdogs taking the P

NEWS bosses face censure from television watchdogs after showing pictures of Corrie actor Michael Le Vell celebrating with a pint of Carlsberg after his sex trial acquittal WITHOUT the on-screen "P" motif denoting Product Placement.

The new rules on products being used on TV came into force in February 2011, allowing brands to be featured on telly providing the "P" symbol is prominently displayed at the same time.

A spokesman for the Television Watchdogs Association Trust (TWAT) said: "It is a clear abuse of the regulations by the news companies. They should all be prosecuted. The DPP is very keen and is already denying it is a witchhunt."

'Three-leg' Liam Wilde about Olivia

MOVIE star Liam Neeson – reputed to have an 11-inch COCK – said he felt like "a three-legged stool" after meeting Hollywood hottie Olivia Wilde.

The pair play lovers in new romantic drama Third Person.

Liam (above with Olivia), 61, admitted he was "so nervous" when she visited him at his flat after being cast for the role.

He said: "I'm a heterosexual guy. There's something about a beautiful woman that makes me feel like a three-legged stool.

"She's talking about the character and I'm looking at her thinking, 'You are unbelievably beautiful'.

"She's such a competent actress in so many ways that sometimes her beauty gets in the way."

In the film Olivia, 29, strips off in a scene with Liam.

But she revealed: "The funny thing is, I'm nude in this film, but you don't see all the goods and it's a silly scene.

"Its not even a sexy scene."

He was collared after cops pieced together CCTV evidence and compared them with dates from the 51-year-old's Oyster travel card, Kingston Crown Court heard.

Salgado, of Chessington in Surrey, admitted playing with himself in front of female passengers on eight different buses all over London between October 2010 and January this year.

He was given eight months in jail, suspended for two years, and banned from buses within the M25 for two years.

CORRIE KEV'S CHRISTMAS CRACKER

BACK WITH A BANG!

ROVER'S RETURN: But who will Le Vell's Street character get to shag?

Le Vell to get bonking storyline on return

GREASE monkey Kevin Webster is set to make a sensational return to Coronation Street at Christmas.

Actor Michael Le Vell is stepping back onto the cobbles after he was found not guilty of raping a young girl earlier this week.

His character has been absent from the ITV soap since February when Le Vell, 48, was charged with rape and other sex offences against the youngster.

Viewers were told Kev was tending to his poorly father Bill in Germany – but Weekend Sport can reveal his return storyline involves a steamy love affair.

EXCLUSIVE by JUSTIN DUNN
justin@sundaysport.co.uk

The garage owner – still estranged from screen wife Sally – will be seen slipping between the sheets with one of Weatherfield's major characters, says our source.

Le Vell, from leafy Hale, Cheshire, is understood to have been offered a new £250,000 contract to return to the Street.

After his acquittal on all charges on Tuesday, a Corrie spokeswoman said: "We are looking forward to meeting with Michael to discuss his return to the programme."

Telly chiefs are keeping the identity of the lucky lady under wraps – but it's thought they have outlined five possibilities...

● EILEEN GRIMSHAW: He beds the unlucky-in-love taxi operator who's single after dumping fireman Paul Kershaw, after a booze-up in the Rovers.

● GAIL McINTYRE: Single after being duped and dumped by love rat Lewis Archer and upset at warring sons Nick and David, she falls for his charms over breakfast barm cakes at Roy's Rolls.

● SEAN TULLEY: After a few too many Kev finds a "port in a storm" – only to wake up next to the only gay in the Street.

● CARLA CONNOR: She sleeps with the mechanic to get revenge after fiancé Peter Barlow gets drunk and has a one night stand.

Our insider said: "Michael deserves a juicy storyline to get his teeth into and that's exactly what he's going to get."

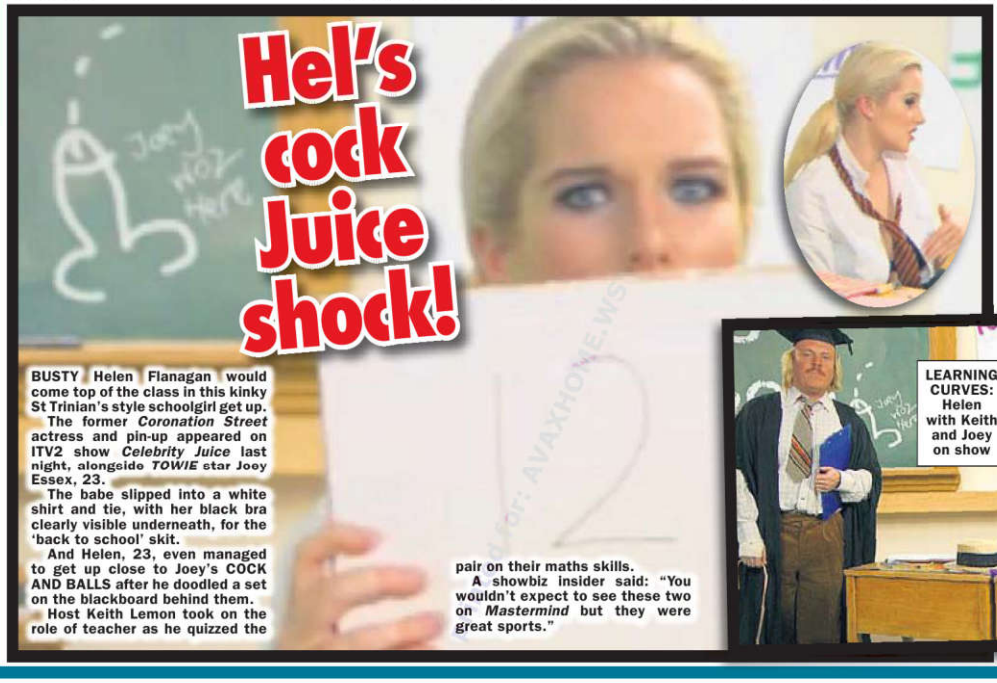
It emerged this week that the mother of the girl who accused Le Vell of raping her is obsessed with SATAN.

Friends branded her "a self-centred attention seeker" who had even blamed a power cut on her electric gates on ghosts.

Meanwhile Director of Public Prosecutions Keir Starmer has defended putting the actor on trial.

Questioned by MPs, the QC said: "A proper assessment was taken in the case and the decision to proceed was the right decision."

Hel's cock Juice shock!



BUSTY Helen Flanagan would come top of the class in this kinky St Trinian's style schoolgirl get up.

The former Coronation Street actress and pin-up appeared on ITV2 show Celebrity Juice last night, alongside TOWIE star Joey Essex, 23.

The babe slipped into a white shirt and tie, with her black bra clearly visible underneath, for the 'back to school' skit.

And Helen, 23, even managed to get up close to Joey's COCK AND BALLS after he doodled a set on the blackboard behind them.

Host Keith Lemon took on the role of teacher as he quizzed the pair on their maths skills.

A showbiz insider said: "You wouldn't expect to see these two on Mastermind but they were great sports."

NHS nurse strips off uniform for her glamour debut

By RACHEL SPENCER
rachel@sundaysport.co.uk

OOH matron! Gorgeous pin-up Jenny James has the perfect bedside manner, as she spent five years working as a NURSE!

But now she's swapped bedpans and thermometers for the bright lights of the glamour world.

Pretty Jenny, 22, recently quit her job on the geriatric ward of the Royal Derby Hospital to concentrate on her glamour modelling career.

And the sight of the pretty 32DD blonde out of her blue uniform could well give some of her OAP patients a heart attack.

The Derby-born babe revealed: "I loved being a nurse and working with the elderly. It wasn't the most glamorous job in the world but I really enjoyed it.

"I'd check the patient's blood pressure and blood sugar levels, and help them bathe. I also had to change commodes and bed pans!

"You have to put a big smile on your face and pretend you really don't mind wiping bums."

Caring Jenny says she always turned up to work looking glam and patients loved her bubbly personality.

Last year Jenny found fame on reality TV show The Bachelor, as she competed to hook-up with Made In Chelsea's Spencer Matthews.

She added: "Everyone at the hospital knew that I had a burning ambition to be a model, so once the offers started coming in I had to take it. My bum wiping days are definitely over!"

VORDERMAN'S LOOSE LIPS OVER PORN

TELLY babe Carol Vorderman has hinted she's a fan of hardcore PORN.

The Loose Women host dropped a clue to an interest in XXX-rated w*nk fodder when criticising MPs for viewing thousands of adult websites.

Carol, 52, spoke up after it was revealed politicians and their staff had accessed a whopping 300,000 grumble sites from within the Houses of Parliament.

But the former Countdown maths whizz – who was replaced on the Channel 4 show by current Strictly Come Dancing contestant Rachel Riley – appeared to let slip an intimate knowledge of what is available online.

She raged: "If that's what you want to do in your personal time, then that's up to you.

"But I'd like to believe that anyone working in Parliament would be thinking about security and bettering the nation rather than what some bird is going to do with a bar of soap and a ping pong ball!"

The ping pong reference is likely to refer to live adults-only performances taking place all year round in ruder parts of the Thailand capital, Bangkok.

Girl dancers have been known to fire ping pong balls from their FANNIES – along with bananas, flags and even RAZOR BLADES – while cheering tourists look on.

Scores of websites stream the shows 24 hours a day to eager punters prepared to cough up a modest access fee.

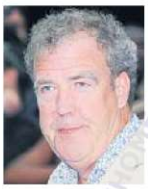
Prime Minister David Cameron announced in July that most households in the UK would have pornography blocked by their internet provider unless they chose to receive it.

But earlier this month a Freedom of Information request revealed the rabid Westminster flesh fascination happening on his own doorstep.

About 5,000 people work on the parliamentary estate.

A Commons spokeswoman said: "We do not consider the data to provide an accurate representation of the number of purposeful requests made by network users."

GOAT SHAGGER'S GRUFF JUSTICE



Middle laners should hog on says Clarkson

TOP GEAR host Jeremy Clarkson has risked angering petrolheads by CHAMPIONING middle-lane hoggers.

The Government is cracking down on drivers using motorways incorrectly with £100 fines for offenders.

But Clarkson, 53, said: "Motorways are usually so busy, it is simply impossible to not hog middle lanes.

"The inside lane is normally rammed with trucks doing 56mph. People who are not good drivers struggle when asked to do anything complicated, like changing lanes.

"But let's say they do pull into the inside lane. Sooner or later, they are going to come up behind a truck and they're going to need to overtake it.

"This will make them panic. Their head will spin round like Linda Blair's in The Exorcist as they scan their mirrors for a gap they can exploit.

"Middle-lane hoggers are actually trundling down the inside lane of what is effectively a dual carriageway."

War hero, 91, flogs medals in disgust

A 91-year-old war hero gave away his medals – because 'older people are treated like rubbish'.

Stanley Fox fought in the World War II and was a prisoner of war for nearly two years in Africa.

The ex-Royal Artillery and South Wales Borderer handed his medals and those of his brother and father to a children's hospice charity.

His father won the Military Cross from action in the Boer War and First World War.

Mr Fox, from Bideford, north Devon, said: "No one seems to care these days – older people are treated like rubbish.

"It is not what we fought for. We were proud to fight for the country and I was proud to wear the medals."

Children's Hospice South West auctioned Mr Fox's medals and they were bought by a collector.

Rihanna bags a gold cock!

POP babe Rihanna giggled with delight as she grappled with a foot-long KNOB yesterday.

The Rude Boy singer even stuck her tongue out with unbridled joy as she took a firm hold of the shiny bell-end.

Sadly it wasn't a real Johnson, it was a veiny member stitched into the side of her designer Vivienne Westwood handbag – which she was brandishing outside a London hotel.

But it didn't stop fans wondering just how Rihanna, 25, might handle a length in the bedroom.

Other users of website Instagram questioned whether the clutch bag was being used to transport RiRi's personal dildo, asking: "Sex toy hold-all?"

Barn pervert jailed

A MAN was jailed yesterday after he admitted having sex with a GOAT.

Robert Newman, 23, launched the night time attack on the helpless farm animal in a barn and his victim needed veterinary treatment after the unnatural assault.

Newman – described as a young man suffering from 'isolation rather than depravity' – initially denied the attack.

But he later changed his plea and admitted having sex with the goat – which can't be identified for legal reasons – contrary to the Sexual Offences Act 2003.

By HAZEL GROVE
news@sundaysport.co.uk

North West Wiltshire magistrates heard that Newman was under an eight-week suspended sentenced for burglary when it happened.

The court activated the suspended term and sentenced jobless Newman to six weeks behind bars, to be served concurrently.

Newman was also ordered to register as a sex offender after the assault, which took place between April 5 and April 16 in Devizes, Wilts.

A victim impact statement from the goat's owner, who was not named, said: "My husband is worried about me being on the farm on my own.

"This person has cost us a considerable amount of money because we have had to install security cameras."

Anne Ellery, defending, said: "This is a young man suffering from isolation. His understanding of what happened is unknown to him.

"Treatment is something that he will need to seek. He has accepted that his delay in admitting the behaviour is because of the embarrassment and shame that went with it."

Newman, from Devizes, has previous convictions including two for burgling a house.

Miss Ellery read a statement from Newman to the court which said: "I don't want to be this bad person anymore, I just want to get on with my life and just do good.

"I want to stand before you and say I am sorry and I just want to be back with my family."

Bench chairwoman Gail Chilcott told him: "You have repeatedly breached all court orders handed to you. This is your second breach of your suspended court order.

"We are activating the suspension and you will go to prison for eight weeks."

DRUNK PORKER MAKES RIGHT PIG'S BEER OF IT

A DRUNK pig terrified campers after guzzling 18 beers before going on a booze-fuelled bender.

The porker stole six packs of lager from tourists, then chased them around their tents while trying to raid their food.

The feral swine then picked a fight with a cow, before ransacking rubbish bins.

Conservation experts in Port Hedland, Western Australia, are warning nature-lovers not to leave grub – or grog – where oinkers can reach it.

Animal welfare worker Adam Chendard, 46, revealed: "The campers heard a noise outside their tent, and when they shone a torch, they saw the pig scrunching away at their cans. They estimated the pig had consumed 18 beers.

"There were some other people camped right on the river and they saw him being chased around their vehicle by a cow."

Feral pigs are a real pest across Australia because of the diseases they carry, which can infect livestock.

WEEKEND Sport SAYS...

We should all tell Ofcom to shove off!

BRITAIN'S strong TV regulatory system reflects the concerns of the majority and protects us from being swamped in a tidal wave of inappropriate filth and drivel, right? WRONG!

Our TV regulators are nothing more than a gang of self-important overpaid members of the bloated quangocracy, busily justifying their own pointless existence.

Take the case of Britain's Got Talent contestant Scarlet Cuffs. After a brief glimpse of her shapely bottom was shown, media regulators Ofcom brought the full weight of their authority down on ITV.

How many people had actually complained?

ONE.

One single, solitary gripe from a witless prude kept the meddling prodnoses of Ofcom busy for months.

It's no surprise that the nosey-parkers of Ofcom want to get their prying beaks into the newspaper industry, and jab their sticky fingers into the workings of newspapers – like your Weekend Sport.

The regulators are a living example of Parkinson's Law – that work expends to fill the time available.

We should resist the march of the meddlers and send a blunt message to the neo-puritans who would tell us how to live our lives:

NIPPING OUT: Naomi's norks could save the film from flopping

Diana biopic slammed by critics – but the leading lady has...

BOOBS TO DI FOR!

THE sexy star of the new Diana movie deserves a royal fanfare – for having such a majestic pair of boobs!

And looking at these topless snaps of actress Naomi Watts, she's the perfect choice to play the Princess Of WAHEY-les Oliver Hirschbiegel's film, which focuses on the last two years of the life of Diana, who died in a car crash in 1997, is released next week.

Based on Kate Snell's 2001 book, Diana: Her Last Love, the film has been panned by critics, with some reviewers even condemning it as "tasteless" including snooty rag The Telegraph.

However, when it comes to naughty Naomi's BREAST performances, her ample assets certainly look good enough to eat.

Perky

Naomi, 44, aired her top rack in David Lynch's characteristically bizarre 2001 flick, Mulholland Drive.

The British-Australian babe also whipped them out in critically-acclaimed film 21 Grams in 2003, and again in 2010 movie, Mother & Child. But judging by the first raft of reviews of Diana, not even her perky norks could save the film from being a full-blown turkey.

One online reviewer wrote: "Naomi's past performances are certain to have most red-blooded blokes fiddling with their Crown Jewels.

"It's just a shame she couldn't bring the same magic to her latest film. Still, at least we've got the topless memories."

Barack Obama robber suspect nicked by cops

A MAN has been arrested on suspicion of robbing a bank at gunpoint while wearing a Barack Obama mask.

Cops say a gun-toting bloke walked into the bank dressed in a President Obama mask, suit jacket, tie and jeans and demanded money from a cashier.

He left on foot with a large amount of money.

The incident took place at the Bank Of America in Merrimack, New Hampshire.

Cops say John Griffin Jr, 52, from the nearby town of Newport, was arrested after an officer noticed that he matched the robber's description and he was found to be carrying a loaded pistol

Detective Scott Park said: "It was probably within five minutes of the bank robbery getting called in.

"Officers came upon the individual exiting the wood line with a bag and the description that had been given by bank personnel.

"Weapons are being used more frequently.

"They are becoming more dangerous and seem to be happening more and more often."

Is that a fact?

'Wee breakfast' nurse hearing

A NURSE served a bottle of URINE with a patient's breakfast during a fraught night shift, a tribunal heard.

Titus Ogunjinmi put the bottle next to the woman's morning meal and then failed to give her the proper medication, it is said.

The nurse is accused of leaving a used incontinence pad on a chair in the woman's room, and not cleaning up two bags of bloodied bandages and dirty linen from another patient's room.

Agency nurse Ogunjinmi faces allegations of poor care and misconduct at Holly House Hospital, in Buckhurst Hill, Essex, on October 6, 2011.

Ogunjinmi, who is at the tribunal in central London, has admitted four charges of failing to administer medication, but denies the rest of the allegations.

The hearing continues.

AUSSIE movie babe Melissa George doesn't mind giving us a peek of her DOWN UNDIES!

Sexy 30 Days Of Night beauty Melissa, 37, bared her cracking figure for a new Agent Provocateur promo advert – aptly named 'Control Yourself.'

The actress, who rose to fame in Australian soap Home and Away, ripped her dress off to reveal bondage-style lingerie for the saucy video.

And the stunna, from Perth, came deliciously close to locking lips with her dancing partners, models Chloe Hayward and Elettra Wiedermann.

She said: "The pictures were artistic, not pornographic. My parents freaked out at first but once they saw them they approved."

Love cheat jailed for having 2 wives

By JON HARRIS
news@sundaysport.co.uk

Donna Darwent, 33, burst into tears as she went to court hand-in-hand with bed-hopping Brian Frain, 36, only to see him locked up and branded a "dishonest man" by a judge.

Frain had two wives and was dating Donna when he was unmasked as a love rat after his first spouse looked for him on Facebook and found pics of his second wedding.

Second wife Louise Meredith, 34, had married Frain in a register office, not realising he was still wed to wife of 14 years Anne-Marie Sim.

The truth only emerged after Frain and Louise, who had twins together, split up when she found he was having flings with other women. He then began dating Donna and cut off ties with Louise and their children.

Last year Ms Sim wanted to remarry but still needed a divorce from Frain. She hired solicitors to try and trace him but when they couldn't locate him, Ms Sim found Frain's Facebook page where she was shocked to see pictures of his second wedding to Louise.

In a statement she said: "As far as I was aware I was still married to him."

Frain, from Cleethorpes, Lincs, admitted bigamy at Manchester Crown Court where Judge Maurice Greene branded him "a very dishonest man" and said only immediate custody was suitable.

Afterwards Donna wept and said: "I'm devastated he's gone to prison but I'm not surprised. What I'm most worried about is telling my four kids.

"When this is all dealt with we hope to pick up where we left off and get our lives back.

"I always said I would never marry. But I have never been settled before and never met my perfect partner.

"Then Brian came along. My kids love him to bits – they see him as their father.

"I am committed enough to marry him."

No money worries is top of the 'happy' list

BRITS feel happiest at 37 than any other age, with financial security the top ambition, says a new poll.

An end to money worries, with 75 per cent of the vote, figured more highly than having a family (50%) and getting wed (43%).

The survey revealed the average woman hopes to get married at 27 and have their first child at 28 while men aim for both ambitions two years later.

In reality, both sexes are getting married three years later than planned at 30 and 32 respectively.

The Sure deodorant poll found women are also more motivated by home comforts, ranking owning a perfect home (43%) and having a pet (31%) higher than men (36% and 18%).

Striving to have a successful career (41%) and starting their own business (22%) is the same in both sexes.

More than a third (37%) of Brits believe they will achieve all of their life ambitions with 5% more men than women confident of completing the list.

The average Brit strives to accomplish all their life aspirations by the age of 40, citing hard work and saving money (70%) and luck (53%) as key factors that would help them.

Mini pips Aston to top Brit motor

THE Mini has been voted the greatest British car of all time – and the Reliant Robin the worst.

The compact vehicle – first made by the British Motor Corporation in 1959 – got 19 per cent of votes in a study to mark the return of Wheelers Dealers on Discovery.

It became iconic after appearing in 1969 movie The Italian Job, and was also driven by Rowan Atkinson's TV comedy character in Mr Bean.

Aston Martin DB7 was the second most desirable (18%), followed by Jaguar E-Type (9%) and Rolls Royce Silver Cloud II (7%).

The Reliant Robin – driven by Del Boy in top TV sitcom Only Fools and Horses – was named the worst British car of all time, with 30% critical of the tiny three-wheeled motor.

THERAPIST SALLY SAVES MARRIAGES BY

Women pay me their husbands!

SEXPERTS: Sally with her fella Paul, who helps on the job

SAUCY sex therapist Sally Renton doesn't mind getting her hands dirty when it comes to helping out her clients.

Rather than just chat to them about their problems in the sack, she gets stuck in and shows them how to put the sizzle back between the bedsheets!

Willing participant Sally, 34, happily has sex with men AND women and irons out any glitches in their technique by showing them how to be the perfect duvet buddy.

The pretty blonde told Sunday Sport: "I've helped hundreds of couples since setting myself up as a therapist five years ago. Out of those, I'd say I've had sex with around 40 guys and twice as many women.

"It's amazing how many married couples don't know how to pleasure each other.

"I'd say when it comes to helping women understand men's needs, demonstrating how to give a good blowjob is what I do the most.

"I've also shown men how to go down on their wives, and then just the basics of how to please a woman with their hands, how to use vibrators and what sexual positions women like most.

"I've been asked to show couples all kinds of things though, from experimenting with BDSM to how to enjoy anal sex.

"It never ceases to amaze me how many men are out there who don't have a clue how to make a woman have an orgasm.

"They can read books and watch videos, but I find my hands-on approach is much more effective.

"And although inviting another woman in the bedroom is slightly unconventional, it's helped save marriages."

By RACHEL SPENCER
rachel@sundaysport.co.uk

Sally, from Prudhoe in Northumberland, has a degree in Psychology and has worked as a Life Coach and therapist since she was in her early 20s.

But she's always had a wild sex life too and her 'hands-on' sex therapy business happened by accident.

Sally, who is bi-sexual, had a friend who confided she feared her boyfriend was about to dump her because she was so nervous in bed.

She explained: "She told me she had no confidence when it came to sex, particularly when it came to giving her boyfriend oral sex.

"She said it had only happened once and she felt like a total flop. So I offered to demonstrate my technique on my boyfriend while she watched.

Fantastic

"We had a couple of glasses of wine first to get rid of her nerves, then I showed her what I did. She went away and tried it and couldn't get it right.

"So she asked if I'd come to her house and give her some guidance, which is what I did. I started showing her what she should be doing, then she took over and finished the job off, if you'll pardon the pun.

"Now, they have a fantastic sex life and it's done wonders for her confidence.

"I'd spoken to lots of clients about their sex lives as a counsellor and it got me thinking, 'Well, why don't I just show them what to do?'"

In the five years she's been running her classes, Sally says she's been asked to help couples enjoy all kinds of kinky fun.

She said: "Last year, I had a string of women who wanted their men to dominate them like in the book Fifty Shades of Grey.

"It was a massive turn-on for so many people, but when they asked their fellas to take charge, like Christian in the book, they were useless and bumbled around.

"I basically researched the most popular scenes in the book and helped couples re-enact them using blindfolds, whips, handcuffs and sex toys.

"I also helped the guys step into the domineering role and advised them on how to speak to their partners and take control so they were convincing."

Another thing people ask Sally to help with is enjoying anal sex.

She explained: "A lot of women like the idea of it, but have bad experiences with clumsy guys.

"I teach them about the importance of lots of foreplay, lube and the speed and pace to go at it. It's funny if my partner asks what I've been doing, and I'll be like, 'Well, I taught a guy how to take his

SALLY'S TOP 10

1. TREAT HER TO SOME NICE LINGERIE

"Women love presents, so splash out on some luxurious lingerie, stockings and suspenders. She'll look as hot as hell and you'll get to whip it off her."

2. GET COMFY DOWN THERE

"Like you fellas, most women like oral sex as it's something they can't do themselves. So get yourself well acquainted with her downstairs and she'll return the favour. Use your tongue, fingers and toys and try to vary what you do each time you do it."

3. KEEP YOURSELF TRIM

"Not just in the gym, down there too. Women are much more willing to want to go down on you if they don't have to rummage around in a mountain of unruly pubes!"

4 TAKE YOUR TIME

"Women don't want a fella who bangs away like the Duracell bunny. Take it slowly, especially if you're taking her from behind, you don't want to slip out and surprise her by going up her bum."

5. BUM'S THE WORD

"Most red-blooded girls actually fancy trying anal sex – it makes them feel naughty and dirty, so try to make it as horny as possible for them with lots of foreplay to get her going and plenty of lube once you start the main event."

6. KEEP A DIRTY DAILY DIARY

"If your missus pops into your thoughts in the middle of the day, write it down or send her a text, saying what you're thinking and what you'd like to do when you get back home. They love to feel wanted and desired."

7. ENJOY A BIT OF ROUGH

"There's a lot to be said for a bit of slap and tickle, and S&M comes in all shapes and sizes. Some girls like a gentle pat on the bottom during sex, other girls go the whole hog and opt for nipple clamps and handcuffs! Start soft and gentle, see what turns her on, and if she wants to ramp-up the whipping, she'll tell you."

THERAPY: Sally shows off her credentials for the intimate work

wife up the bum today dear!'"

Her boyfriend of seven years, Paul, 39, a plumber, knows what she does, and has even been her 'guinea pig' at sex workshops.

She explained: "I've put on classes for single girls on how to pleasure a guy properly, and have used Paul to demonstrate how to give a handjob and a blowjob and various sex positions.

"He found it a bit strange being watched by a room full of women but soon forgot he had an audience!

"He doesn't see what I do as cheating. He understands it's part of my work."

Orgasm

When Sally meets a client for the first time, she explains that straightforward couple counselling is £80 per hour, and her more intimate sessions start at £200 per hour.

She always practises safe sex and says the women she helps don't feel threatened at all when she joins them and their partners.

"Sometimes I have to show the guy how to please his wife, and sometimes it's the woman who needs the guidance, but I'm happy to help either," she said.

"I like to think that I am not only the Master of the Male Orgasm but the Female Orgasm, too!"

Sally's treated couples of all ages, shapes and sizes, with her youngest clients being a couple in their early 20s and her oldest in their 60s.

She said: "I'm proud of what I do. We hear so much about people having affairs and all the heartache that can bring. I'm mending marriages instead.

"Some people are baffled by what I do. They see it as the guy or the girl cheating if they're engaging in sex acts with me.

"But it's not like that at all. I'm just fine tuning their technique.

"If you wanted your partner to be a better dancer and they went for lessons you wouldn't think anything of it. I just don't understand why people are so sniffy when it comes to sex.

"It's a very important part of any relationship.

"I think it's much better that a couple come to me if their sex life is in a bit of a rut, rather than go off and have an affair or split up."

SEX TIPS

8. STOCK UP ON SEX TOYS

"Research by online sex firm Lovehoney claims that half of women in the UK own a sex toy. Don't feel threatened by them, incorporate them into your sex life. The more orgasms she has, the randier she'll be for you!"

9. MAKE IT A MARATHON, NOT A SPRINT

"Although we are very flattered if you come in less than a minute, most women like a guy who can last for at least ten minutes, or rise to the occasion quickly afterwards. Pace yourself by thinking of the likes of EastEnders' Dot Cotton or filling in a tax return."

10. BE SPONTANEOUS

"Don't just limit sex to the bedroom. Women like variety, so seduce her in the kitchen, bathroom, on the stairs, on a romantic country walk or even Tesco car park! And vary the time of day you do it, too."

THIS FEELS LIKE THE BIRTH OF SOMETHING BAD

LOUISE Casey, the government's underclass tsar (left), has suggested that mothers of large, troubled families should be marched to their doctor and "offered" advice on contraception.

They will be "advised" that having another sprog may not be the "best solution". They will be advised that getting a job may be the route to a more fulfilling life. Now, on paper, this looks like a smashing idea. There's no doubt that women shitting out kids and expecting the parish to pick up the bill is a problem.

Of course, it is a problem that has been compounded by the policies of successive governments.

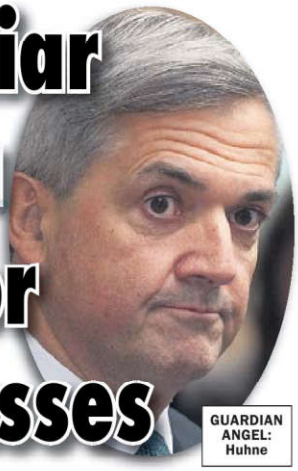
Now the government is trying to sort things out. This bodes ill, as governments have a phenomenally bad record when it comes to sorting things out.

And we should be get worried when governments start pushing birth control on any particular section of society. Or when they start talking about "solutions". Or when they advise that "work will set you free".

Because that sort of thing has been tried before. It didn't end well.

THE FINAL SOLUTION: The Nazi's Auschwitz camp

Self-serving liar and cheat – a poster boy for our ruling classes



GUARDIAN ANGEL: Huhne

WE have to be grateful to the lying sex cheat criminal jailbird – and one time leading LibDem politician – Chris Huhne, for explaining some things for us recently.

It turns out that his family didn't fall apart because he started dipping his wick in a lanky part-time lesbian.

He didn't get sent to prison because he broke the law by lying, and then wasted thousands of pounds of public money denying a crime he knew perfectly well he'd committed.

It was all newspaper boss Rupert Murdoch's fault, apparently.

How Mr Murdoch forced Huhne to stick his gristly dick up a woman who was not his wife remains a mystery.

As does how the octogenarian Aussie forced Huhne to lie to the police and the public right up the opening of his trial.

But it is all quite clear to the wretched little toe-rag Huhne and his new employers – you guessed it, The Guardian.

That newspaper will embrace any scrap of subhuman plankton, as long as they have an anti-Murdoch axe to grind.

So now they have the revolting excuse of a human being Huhne on board, alongside their usual collection of maniacs, oddballs, traitors, malcontents and – there are no other words – FING ARSEHOLES!

As very few normal people read The Guardian it would be easy to dismiss the paper as a lunatic fringe publication.

But this is the house journal of Britain's professional prodnose class. Every state-funded busybody who imposes their will on your life reads a script dictated by The Guardian.

Poisonous

Teachers, social workers, civil servants, council bosses, health professionals, senior police – all Guardian readers.

The head honchos of regulators in telecoms, advertising, the former nationalised industries, transport – all marching to The Guardian's drum.

Everything you see on the telly is subtly influenced by this poisonous rag as everyone who works in the broadcast media – DAHLING! – sings from The Guardian songsheet.

Forget any influence Rupert Murdoch has. It is the small-circulation Guardian that calls the shots in Britain today.

Guardian types despise – absolutely despise – the views and values of the ordinary British working man.

While at the same time, they give the oxygen of publicity to vile, lying maggots like Chris Huhne. That is the measure of the people who really run our country.

ON the subject of self-serving public sector scoundrels, it's interesting to see how top brass at the BBC showered each other with licence fee-payers' cash.

Several executives leaving the Corporation went with bundles of loot far in excess of what their contracts entitled them to.

Now, if someone quit Sport Towers and I took it upon myself to bung them a few hundred quid from the kitty as a parting gift, my bosses would have my ballbag for bootstraps.

It would be something quite close to, well, stealing.

We, the licence fee-payers, are the bosses when it comes to the publicly-owned BBC.

So I think it's time a good many of us asked Inspector Knacker to investigate what has happened to all our money.

Especially when the authorities are all too happy to jail folks who don't pay their licence fee.

PRINCE Andrew reportedly hit the roof and went into full "don't you know who I am" mode when he was challenged by armed police as he strolled round the grounds of Buckingham Palace.

Randy Andy should think himself lucky he wasn't sporting a deep tan after one of his many foreign jaunts.

The Dibble would have put six bullets into the back of his head before you could say "freeloading bastard".

Ram butt OAP saved by BT call

AN old female farmer's life was saved by BT engineers after she broke her hip when a RAM attacked her.

Violet Prince, 83, who has a flock of Dorset sheep and goats at her farm in Exbourne, Devon, was left helpless in agony and unable to move after the beast turned.

Her relatives claim she might have DIED if it wasn't for a passing telecoms van and its crew, who heard her cries for help.

The three engineers were working on nearby overhead cables before turning into her gateway to let another car pass.

They gave her a jacket and kept her warm while phoning for an ambulance.

Violet's sister, Joan Bevis, who lives in Shebbear, Devon, said: "Nobody walks by that road and any cars passing go straight on.

"It was so fortunate that the BT van stopped. The engineer that found her saved her life."

Violet was given a replacement hip at Devon and Exeter Hospital, in Exeter, and is recuperating with the aid of crutches.

POP babe Melanie C has lifted the lid on her knicker-flashing past!

The former Spice Girl, 39, confessed that back in the days of Girl Power, she used to flash her panties to audiences of 20,000 people.

Merseyside-born Mel, aka Sporty Spice, said: "Well, there's been a couple of times on stage with the Spice Girls where my trousers have split because I'm forever doing those sporty kicks.

"That can be quite embarrassing when there's 20,000 people watching. And I was wearing quite small underwear at the time!"

"I like to think that if you want to get it on with a guy, he can just get his hand up there, play around with you and have you straight away instead of having to mess about taking your jeans and socks off."

And the rampant lovely added: "It means that I can straddle his face and get a good ride going on.

MI5 SPOOKS 'COVERED UP' CYRIL SMITH SEX CRIMES

SORDID: Fat child abuser Smith

MI5 has been accused of helping to cover up a child abuse scandal involving late Liberal Democrat MP Cyril Smith.

Secret documents have revealed a catalogue of vile sex crimes committed by the fat perv at a special school where he was a governor.

The files were unearthed by Channel 4 which screened a documentary on the 29-stone politician – The Paedophile MP: How Cyril Smith Got Away With It – on Thursday night.

By JUSTIN DUNN justin@sundaysport.co.uk

The folder – which accused Smith of "a sordid series of indecent episodes with young boys" – was handed to prosecutors in 1970 but then went missing for more than four decades.

Code

A former special branch cop claims he took a call in 1977 from "BOX 500" – police code for MI5 – requesting the file be sent to London, after which it vanished.

Police are already investigating historical allegations of child abuse at the school.

The case has strong parallels with that of former BBC DJ and abuser Jimmy Savile, who was allowed access to patients at Broadmoor, Stoke Mandeville and Leeds General Infirmary.

Channel 4 Dispatches reporter, Liz MacKean, worked on the BBC Newsnight investigation into Savile in 2011.

Greater Manchester Police admitted in November last year that past decisions not to prosecute Smith would not be made today.

Physical

It also acknowledged that boys at the school had been victims of physical and sexual abuse by Smith, who died in 2010 aged 82.

The offences at Knowl View – which Smith helped to found – took place during the 1980s and 1990s.

LITTLE COP SHOP OF HORRORS

By JUSTIN DUNN justin@sundaysport.co.uk

A GRISLY museum of MURDER could soon be open to the public.

Cops in London are being urged to open their notorious Crime Museum to visitors to help raise cash.

Among the artefacts are the pot and stove used by gay serial killer Dennis Nilsen to boil the FLESH of his 15 young male victims.

The poison-filled pellet pulled from the leg of assassinated Bulgarian dissident Georgi Markov after he was stabbed with an umbrella is on show, along with a letter sent "from hell" by Jack the Ripper.

The 150-year collection – known as the Black Museum – includes weapons, death masks and hangman's nooses.

Conservative members of the Greater London Authority believe the artefacts – stored in Room 101 at New Scotland Yard – could help pay to put more bobbies on the beat.

At present people can only view the collection by invitation and among the privileged few to have poked their noses among the macabre exhibits including Sherlock Holmes creator Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Houdini and Laurel and Hardy.

It's thought opening it up to paying guests could raise millions for the Metropolitan Police coffers. Campaigners believe having a temporary three-month public exhibition could attract 300,000 visitors paying £15 a head – which could fund an extra 55,000 policing hours in the capital.

London Assembly's Roger Evans said: "The exhibition could bring in £4.5million."

The museum first came into existence in 1974 at the original Scotland Yard in Whitehall beginning as a collection of lags' property.

Fab Ab can be Strictly successful

STRICTLY babe Alex Jones has tipped Abbey Clancy as the one to watch this year – because of her jaw-dropping figure!

Gorgeous Alex, 36, who presents the show, reckons the Scouse WAG's skimpy costumes will be a hit.

On Abbey, wife of Stoke City striker Peter Crouch, Alex said: "She looks superb in the costumes – just gorgeous. She's got the physique for it. I've met Abbey before and I think she'll do OK."

But the Welsh stunna said she was horrified at the amount of flesh she flashed as a contestant in 2011.

She added: "I was so self-conscious because I had to dance in front of 12 million people and be quite raunchy.

"I've worn more in the shower!"

Army declares war on fatties!

WANNABE soldiers who are TOO FAT to fight are being turned away from the Armed Forces.

According to new figures one in 20 applicants fail because of physical or medical issues.

Figures from the past two years show more than 600 hopefuls were rejected by the Army either because they were too large or they failed their initial fitness tests.

Out of these, 115 were rejected because of their body mass index (BMI) – a measure of body fat based on a person's weight and height.

Another 540 failed because they didn't pass fitness criteria.

A fitness test for police officers was recently criticised for favouring fat men over their physically fitter female counterparts.

Iggy gets iiggy!

NIP NIP hooray! Pop babe Iggy Azalea has bared her pert boobs in a jaw-dropping new video!

These days you can't count yourself a chart star unless your promos are packed with naked breasts.

And yesterday Iggy, 23, jumped on the saucy bandwagon after stripping off in the vid for her new single Change Your Life.

The Australian hottie – real name Amethyst Kelly – is seen lounging on a lilo in a swimming pool while wearing a see-through vest which clearly displays her chapel hatpegs.

And then Iggy goes the whole hog, clambering out of the water minus her top, with her red puppies' noses on full view.

She recently admitted on Twitter that she loved her small-but-perky knockers, saying: "If you have small boobies, I think us girls should feel good about them. Work what u got."

BEES ZAP BEZ IN THE BALLS!

COCK 'N' BAWL: Bez had 100 bees in pants

By JUSTIN DUNN
justin@sundaysport.co.uk

Around 100 honey bees got trapped inside his pants while setting up new hives.

Bez, 50, ran into trouble when he first began learning how to set up bee colonies.

He is supporting a green initiative in his native Manchester and is hoping others will follow his lead.

But the freaky dancer ran into trouble when he tried to set up a hive in woods near his home on a commune near Swansea, South Wales.

New hives and bees can cost up to £800 but Bez said he was lucky enough to have bought his for £50 off "some fella" who no longer wanted it.

But he was stung badly after leaving his trouser zip undone while not covered by his bee-keeping foil tunic.

Bez said around 100 bees got inside his pants and he had to run into woods.

He said. "I got stung where you would never want to get stung. Quite a few hits as well. "It hurt – a lot!"

Bez joined a campaign to increase the bee population earlier this year, urging fans to sow seeds to attract them.

Bez – real name Mark Berry – explained: "My grandad, when he came home from the war, the only thing he came home with was four tins of honey and ever since honey has been part of our family life."

Telly babe Camilla's naked hell

TELLY babe Camilla Arfwedson has revealed her horror at stripping off in front of a massive thetreaudience.

Cute Camilla, 31, the new face on Holby City, said she was terrified to go naked in front of friends, family and a room full of strangers.

The brunette, who plays Dr Zosia March, said: "I got a part in a play where I had to take my clothes off.

"I thought I was fine with it, then a few weeks in I realised I wasn't fine with it at all.

"A lot of people said, 'You're an actress. This is what you're supposed to do – you should be able to do it.'

"You do feel like you're lucky to get the part, so you should just do whatever is required of you."

Is that a fact?

Vinnie nearly came to a grizzly end!

HARDMAN Vinnie Jones has told how he almost became dinner for a hungry grizzly bear.

The former soccer nutter was filming his new National Geographic telly show Russia's Toughest when a hairy beast threatened to rip his head off.

Lock Stock And Two Smoking Barrels* star Vinnie, 48, said: "In one episode, we came face to face with a grizzly bear, about 10 metres away.

"We knew we were in trouble when we saw two cubs wandering about.

"The mother was huffing and puffing at us – I really thought that was it – 'good night, nurse'.

"Even the guide with us thought it was a bit hairy. He has his AK-47 locked and loaded!"

Vinnie also says Russia wasn't for the faint hearted.

He added: "We were covered in sh*t and muck most of the time, freezing our nuts off."

Zapped by lightning, savaged by monkeys, bitten by a rattlesnake, eaten by a shark – meet...

THE WORLD'S UNLUCKIEST MAN!

HAPLESS Erik Norrie should lock himself in a padded cell today – because he doesn't need Friday 13th's help to encounter bad luck.

After suffering a string of odds-defying, life-threatening mishaps, he's been dubbed 'the world's unluckiest man'.

The bumbling 40-year-old must have walked under a good few ladders, stepped on all the cracks in the pavement, left his shoes on the table.... and kicked a black cat.

Because while Erik says he's not superstitious, he's been struck by lightning...TWICE, been beaten by monkeys, gnawed-at by deadly snakes and even chomped by a shark!

His latest bout of bad karma came in July when a man-eating fish almost tore off his leg while he snorkelled in the Bahamas – causing injuries that almost killed him through the sheer amount of blood he lost.

But Erik is refusing to let the setbacks get him down and says he lives by the motto 'forgive and forget'.

In an exclusive interview with Weekend Sport, he revealed: "Later this month, I'm going back to find that same shark. Having been pretty close to him, I think I'd recognise him!

"I'm going to catch him and, contrary to what everyone thinks, I'm not going to kill it – I'm going to let him go. As humans we need to learn to forgive and that is what will make the world a better place."

Erik's string of ordeals began when he was just 10 years old, growing up in sunny Largo, Florida.

While standing under a tree he was hit by a bolt of lightning and found himself blown 10ft off his feet. Some people say that lightning never strikes twice... but try telling that to Erik.

In 2008 he was hit AGAIN after being caught in torrential rain in Costa Rica.

He said: "I stepped out of the car into some deep water and leaned against a power line for support. Just as I did lightning struck the pole.

"It totally fried my arm – the pain was pretty intense. I could feel it pulsating and throbbing as the bolt went through. It got burnt up pretty bad."

It's not just the heavens that hate Erik – it seems most deadly animals do too.

Aged 13, Erik had his first run in with the planet's most feared creatures when a rattlesnake sunk its fangs into his leg while he ambled around a local golf course.

His injuries were so severe medics feared that he'd lose his leg.

Erik, a fisherman, explained: "That was the most painful thing I've ever experienced.

"I was in hospital for two weeks. My leg turned black and they thought I might lose it.

"They were also pretty concerned I wouldn't pull through."

Next-up to try and off Erik were a pack of marauding primates, which he encountered in Brazil in 2005.

By ISOBEL DICKINSON
izzy@sundaysport.co.uk

After getting too close to a pack of howler monkeys, they set upon him, biting and clawing at his neck and chest, while punching him in the head!

Erik laughs: "That might sound funny, but it was no laughing matter at the time. I pretty much thought I was a goner."

A year later, the same thing happened AGAIN as he visited a Honduras farm and somehow found himself locked in a CAGE with an angry simian.

He says: "I don't know what I did to make him so mad – I was lucky to get out of there alive."

And now Erik is still slowly recovering from gruesome lacerations after being savaged by a deadly 6ft Blacktip shark.

Reliving his harrowing trauma, Erik explained: "I was snorkelling and I'd just speared a huge grouper fish, but instead of killing it outright it was just stunned so it was thrashing about on the end of the spike. I started to swim back to the boat to put it in the cooler when I felt something on my leg.

"It felt like something grabbing it really tight and the pain searing through my leg was almost like being electrocuted.

"I screamed and looked back, and as I did I saw a shark's open mouth and jagged teeth just bearing down on my leg.

"It took a bite and ripped a chunk off. As it swam away I could see part of my leg in its mouth and the shark chomping down and eating it.

"Within a few seconds there was a deep red pool of blood spanning a three-metre radius around me.

"I could see I was losing a lot of blood – my body had already turned a different colour. That's when I knew I was in real trouble.

"Blood was squirting in three directions, like a pumping heartbeat – squirt, squirt, squirt.

"I could see the shark's fin slicing through the water and coming back to have a second go and I knew I had to get out of there. People have asked me if I was scared, but that's not what I felt.

"It's hard to describe it but I didn't have any fear or anxiety.

"I started swimming into the shallower water as fast as I could and somehow managed to pull myself up on to some rocks."

Erik is now on his way to recovery.

He added: "I've got a pretty nasty scar, it's about seven inches by nine and two inches thick. But I'm here to tell the tale and that's what I thank God for every day."

BLOODY HELL: Erik's leg after a shark sunk its teeth into it

Erik defies the odds...

LIGHTNING: Odds of being hit by lightning in the US is one in 567,000. Odds of being hit by lightning TWICE is one in 360 million.

SHARK ATTACK: Odds of being in a shark attack is one in 11.5 million.

DEADLY SNAKES: Odds of being bitten by a poisonous snake is one in 40,000.

MONKEYS: Odds of being punched by monkeys....twice is one in 22 million.

DVDs of Gaz will show lad how to shag!

GEORDIE Shore's Gaz wants to teach his future son about bonking – by making him watch his show!

The Newcastle lad (above) revealed that watching his on-screen shagging antics is the best way to teach kids about the birds and the bees, and hopes his child will follow in his womanising footsteps.

Reality star Gaz Beadle, 25, said, "I think when my kid reaches 18, I'll give them the Geordie Shore DVD, tell them to watch it then come back and we'll have a little chat about sex.

"If I have a little son, I'll be more like, 'How many girlfriends have you got at school? Three? High Five!'"

The former tiler has made a name for himself since romping his way onto our screens back in 2009 as a cast member for the Newcastle based show.

And the MTV star says it's the best thing that's ever happened to him in terms of pulling the ladies.

Gaz said, "If it wasn't for Geordie Shore my tally would be a lot less. But it's the best job in the world as I get pissed and shag girls for a living."

Who you gonna call...names at!

GHOSTBUSTERS hero Dan Aykroyd has lifted the on his four-letter AIR rage tirade that left a fellow passenger gobsmacked.

The 61-year-old says he lost his rag big time after being forced to sit behind a lard-arse.

The actor revealed: "I was on a flight back from Brazil recently and there was a guy in front of me, a monstrous, fat bureaucrat, and he cranked his seat right back.

"I took about an hour of this and then I leaned into his ear, and I began to hiss, 'You little monster, I should slap your head, you piece of sh*t. You know what you are? You're a selfish fat ct'.

"And I just kept going until finally he cranked his seat forward.

"I gave him the dirtiest look and when he got off the plane he was ready to slap me, but he didn't dare."

BRITAIN'S HOT TALENT

NAME: Hollie Hill
AGE: 21
FROM: Winchester
STATS: 32C-30-34

I love...
Two things – the sun and alcohol!

I hate...
Rain!

My big secret:
It's a funny story – I once did it in a church field!

My girly crush...
Kim Kardsahian, she's gorgeous!

By AMBER BLEASE news@sundaysport.co.uk

BUBBLY blonde Hollie Hill is a feminist – who's campaigning for the rights of women who want to flash their BOOBS!

The gorgeous 21-year-old, a yummy mummy with a daughter of one, is fuming at women's groups who want to ban lads mags.

She's been using her Twitter account to voice her opinion that seeing girls in bikinis is perfectly natural and shouldn't be frowned upon.

And the bright and brainy beauty – a sumptuous 32C – told Weekend Sport: "Why do you think all those women in the Sixties burned their bras? They wanted to get their boobs out! And it's the same for people like me.

Nudity

"In my opinion, the entire world is going mad. How can people be so offended by a little bit of nudity? It's like living in the Dark Ages.

"These so-called feminists won't rest until we're all wearing burkas while chained to the kitchen sink.

"They need to stop attacking people like me, girls who are simply doing a job they love."

Sexy Hollie, who lives with her hunky boyfriend in Hampshire city, says she loves keeping her hot bod in shape by running, ice-skating...and partying!

She told us: "I used to take ice skating lessons, so that gave me quite a toned body.

"And when I'm not running around after my daughter, I love going for long jogs in the park too.

"It's a great way to give you a nice firm bottom!"

Arg shows Helen his wet willy!

THE Only Way Is Essex star James 'Arg' Argent says he couldn't stop showing his fellow Celebrity Super Spa contestant Helen Flanagan his WET WILLY!

Arg (above), 25, stars in the new reality TV show for Channel 5 along with former Corrie babe Helen, 23, and he's admitted that the busty babe brings out his saucy side.

He explained: "It sounds rude, but you know 'wet willies', where you put a wet finger in someone's ear? I've been doing that a lot."

Aspiring swing singer Arg has been spotted on nights out with busty 32E stunna Helen, since her split from West Brom footie ace, Scott Sinclair, 24.

While the tubby telly star has confessed his lust for the curvy cracker, he remains coy on potential for romance.

He added: "I'd be lying if I said I didn't find her attractive.

"Most men in the country think she's pretty fit. She's a good-looking girl and a great laugh.

"Umm...All I can say is she is a very attractive young girl

"At the moment we're just really good friends. I'm glad that she's been here.

"She's great company. She's someone I can get up to mischief with."

Is that a fact?

IT takes only 15 watts of electricity going through the human body to stop the heart. Lightbulbs run on 25 to75 watts.

Scots have got the will to give

BIG-hearted Scots have shattered their skinflint image.

More than four-in-10 – 42% – donate cash to charity after seeing tear-jerking appeals compared to the UK average of 25%.

They are also more likely to dip in to their pockets to sponsor friends and family – 65% against the national average of 54%.

On top of that they respond most to charity emails.

More than 18 per cent hand over money versus a national average of just 12 per cent, reveals a poll for the fundraising scheme Give As You Live.

Wazza's pal: He's hard to understand

ONE of Wayne Rooney's best friends admits he can't understand a word the Scouser says.

The England striker (above), 27, is pals with American comedian Kevin Hart, and the pair are often spotted clubbing together both here and in the States.

But funnyman Kevin – who has starred in movies like Along Came Polly, Scary Movie 3 and This Is The End – says he struggles to comprehend his Liverpool-born mate.

The 34-year-old actor, who stars in new movie Kevin Hart: Let Me Explain, revealed: "Wayne's a brilliant party host. Well, he's great when I can understand him – that accent is full-on!"

Meanwhile Hart isn't the first person to admit being puzzled by the Manchester United hitman's thick brogue – team-mate Javier Hernandez also needs a translator.

The 25-year-old Mexican said: "When I first came here, everyone sounded the same, but now I know accents.

"Mind you, it's hard to understand Wazza."

Kelly's getting back in shape

BUSTY Kelly Brook has vowed to knock her cracking curves back into shape after piling on the pounds.

The top heavy pin-up is renowned for having one of the most sizzling bodies in showbiz.

But following her break-up with England rugby star Danny Cipriani, 25, she was snapped looking a little heftier.

Kelly, 33, appears to be moving on, with rumours circulating that she's now dating Andy Brown, 26, the singer in boyband, Lawson.

And now, having just completed a seven-day detox programme in Turkey, she's promised to dazzle with her all-natural 30G assets once more.

She said: "I'm quite strong and toned underneath, so even if I do put weight on, it doesn't take long to get it back off."

1D LOUIS' VOMIT GOES CHUNDER THE HAMMER

INSATIABLE One Direction fans are lapping-up Louis Tomlinson's BARF!

After being poleaxed by Aston Villa's Gabriel Agbonlahor, little Louis, 21, was left blowing chunks on the side of the pitch while clutching his poorly knee.

Now some of the singer's chunder has been controversially put up for sale through an internet auction site.

And despite the eBay listing clearly being a cruel fake, several female admirers had already begun BIDDING on the gone-off puke.

Speaking after the posting was removed from eBay, our source revealed: "It goes to show just how popular One Direction are when even a band member's vomit is valuable.

"What you do with someone else's hurl is anyone's guess."

Doncaster-born Louis had been playing for a Celtic XI side in order to raise money for Leukemia charities, in honour of cancer-hit soccer star Stiliyan Petrov, 34.

Louis's participation helped boost attendance to a capacity 60,000.

GOOD SIGN: Vikki will reveal all at her book signing

VIKKI LETS YOU INTO HER DARK SECRET!

MYSTERY erotic writer Vikki Dark will be revealing all this weekend when she attends an official book signing for her new novel The Trouble With Beauty.

Vikki has kept the literary world in the DARK by refusing to reveal her true identity.

All that is known about the mysterious author is that she is a former stripper, glamour model and fully-fledged dominatrix – so she knows what she's talking about when it comes to SEX.

Now Vikki is breaking her cover to sign copies of her new book – the follow-up to her 2012 smash Disturbia – at the Book Inn, Broadway West, Leigh-on-Sea, Essex, at 1pm on Saturday September 14.

It's your chance to discover the woman with the sensational body who's behind the biggest erotic fiction event since Fifty Shades of Grey.

Vikki would only speak to us on the phone ahead of the signing this weekend and explained what she was trying to achieve with her latest book.

She says: "Disturbia was extremely hardcore, taking the reader into the mind's eye of a sexual practitioner, into a life devoted to sex.

"The Trouble With Beauty covers exhibitionism and the power of hot, sexy women who strip naked for money within the enclaves of a glittery night-time underworlds."

Asked about her reasons for using a nom de plume, she said: "I like the mystery, and it helps me creatively too.

"I'm not sure I could write such X-rated stuff under my own name!"

Ronda: I'm fighting fit for nookie!

UFC babe Ronda Rousey has revealed that her favourite pre-fight ritual is SHAGGING!

For male MMA (Mixed Martial Arts) fighters, sex before a bout is strictly banked as it usually saps their testosterone levels.

But Yank Ronda, the current Women's Bantamweight Champ, says it's completely different for female fighters.

The blonde beauty, 26, (above) explained: "It's just a medical fact. As a girl, if you have sex before a fight, it raises your testosterone.

"People are fascinated by it because that is one difference between men and women.

"You know, the guys have to abstain, and the girls are kind of medically encouraged to do the opposite.

"If it's available to me, then I'm all for it. But otherwise I'm kind of out of luck."

Ronda, who won bronze in judo at the Beijing Olympics in 2008, is the best pound-for-pound girl MMA fighter in the world.

Is that a fact?

BATS are greedy bastards, eating as many as 600 insects an hour every night – that's one-half to three-quarters of their own body-weight in one evening.

Luther desperate for 'clunge' flick

LUTHER star Idris Elba wants to appear in the next Inbetweeners movie.

The Brit actor, 40, is touting himself for a role alongside the hapless, sex-obsessed teens – who often refer to girls as "clunge".

Anthony Head, who starred in the 2011's The Inbetweeners Movie, said: "I was at a gig with Idris recently and he says he wants a walk-on part."

Elba, who's also a rapper, is a big star in America after playing drug dealer Stringer Bell in cult TV show The Wire for several series.

Talking about his pal's desperation to star in the Inbetweeners sequel, Head added: "He'll do anything."

CELEBRITY BIG BROTHER EXCLUSIVE

CHARLOTTE'S MUM SHORE HATES HER TELLY BONKS

THE red-faced mum of Celebrity Big Brother babe Charlotte Crosby has told how she hates watching her daughter BONK on screen.

By NEIL GOODWIN
neil@sundaysport.co.uk

Embarrassed mother Letitia says that while she won't slam her daughter for dropping her knickers during MTV's Geordie Shore, she can't bear to witness it either.

Protective Letitia gasped: "I wouldn't watch her having sex on the show. I wouldn't watch that part and I would just get up and turn it off.

"But as I see it, she went on the show and said, 'I'm just going to be me,' and that's what she did."

Shagged

Feisty Charlotte, 23, famously shagged her then-boyfriend Gaz Beadle on Geordie Shore.

On Channel 5's CBB she has been clashing with housemate Vicky Entwhistle after the 44-year-old branded her a 'fat slag from Newcastle'.

And Charlotte has also managed to PISS the bed while drunk – having previously weed in a sink AND pooed herself on Geordie Shore. Charlotte's poor mam Letitia says she just KNEW to expect a sodden pants problem.

She laughed: "I knew that would happen if they didn't take her to the toilet.

"She was drunk and she's a very deep sleeper. She doesn't do it at home because I make her go to the toilet."

Meanwhile, Charlotte's Geordie Shore co-star Holly Hagan, 21, has complained that men think she's a goer – even though she's only slept with three men since being on the show.

She moaned: "I only slept with James, Scotty T and one other boy in the seven series we've done. So to sleep with three people in three years, I don't know how people call me a slag."

Smuggler hid drugs in fake baby bump

A SOCIAL worker has been arrested after she was caught trying to smuggle cocaine in a fake baby bump!

Cops say Tabitha Leah Ritchie faked pregnancy in a bid to sneak 2kg of the Class A drug on to a flight.

The 28-year-old mule had stuffed packages of the white powder inside a false belly made of latex taped to her body, say police.

Ritchie, from Toronto, Canada, was stopped while trying to board a flight in Bogota, Columbia, back to her homeland.

Colonel Esteban Arias says an inspector became suspicious after noticing that her belly was unusually cold and hard.

Cops then searched her and found the drugs.

She was held in custody and prevented from travelling on the Air Canada flight.

SCARLET GIVES 'EM THE BUM'S RUSH!

Dancer slams TV watchdog over BGT rap

SHOW STOPPER: Scarlet on BGT

BRITAIN'S Got Talent babe Scarlet Cuffs has slammed watchdogs for saying her performance broke television nudity rules.

The burlesque dancer bared her bum during a rendition of the Jungle Book classic The Bare Necessities on the show in April this year.

Show judges Amanda Holden, 42, David Walliams, 42, Simon Cowell, 53, and Alesha Dixon, 34, all loved her performance.

But after just ONE viewer complained, Ofcom upheld the gripe yesterday, saying: "The protection of children from potentially harmful content is a key area of concern."

Prudes

Scarlet, 32, who lives in the East End of London, says she is flabbergasted that some petty prudes have taken issue with her delicious derriere.

She said: "I'm just staggered. All I showed was my bottom – a part everyone has and something children see every day!

"I can't express how angry it makes me feel that people are so blinkered. There was an eight-year-old child on the same series singing about one night stands. Surely that is more questionable than me showing my bottom?"

Scarlet, who has honed her exotic dance act for the last two and a half years, said she was also upset to see her performance dismissed as 'stripping'.

By RACHEL SPENCER
rachel@sundaysport.co.uk

The star added: "Burlesque is about comedy and satire, whereas stripping is more sexual.

"It's bizarre that Ofcom didn't uphold a complaint about a woman who gave Simon Cowell a lapdance and grinded on him, but they have a go at me.

"I see what I do as being just like what Barbara Windsor did in the Carry On films. Yes, it's nudity – but it's cheeky, funny and tongue-in-cheek.

"I'm a grown woman with a career that's all about sexual empowerment. All I have done is show my bottom.

"They need to get a grip."

Scarlet, a curvy 34B, says she has the full support of her friends and family who also reckon the ruling is ridiculous.

She revealed: "It is a setback for me, as I think it gives people the wrong view of my act. And I've been really upset by it.

"The sad fact is that even though it's hugely popular, a burlesque act won't get through Britain's Got Talent because of stupid rules like this.

"But I'm not going to let it drag me down. I love my career as a performer and since appearing on the show it's got better and better."

FURIOUS, YES – FAST IT AIN'T

FAST & FURIOUS 6 12 **
CALL The AA – because judging by this moron-pleasing excuse of a film, the Fast & Furious franchise has run out of gas.

In Fast Five, Dom and Brian, played by Vin Diesel and Paul Walker, had to flee America after hitting a Brazilian drug lord for $100million.

This follow-up finds them and their crew scattered across the globe, dreaming of home.

But the only way they'll be allowed back in to the U.S. is if they help CIA Agent Luke Hobbs, played by Dwayne 'The Rock' Johnson, take down a gang of mercenary drivers.

From here, director Justin Win is able to dazzle with a string of high-octane set-pieces, including one in which a tank is driven down the wrong side of the Spanish freeway

It's most definitely furious, but at over two hours long and largely devoid of a plot, it could certainly do with being a whole lot faster.

BETTER RUN FOR THE EXIT

RUN FOR YOUR WIFE
12 *
THIS Brit flick famously made a pitiful £602 during its opening weekend earlier this year.

And on the evidence of the 94 tedious minutes that make up the movie, it was £602 too much.

In fact, those responsible for saddling the world with such utter sh*t should be made to pay anyone who sits through it as compensation for causing severe displeasure.

Adapted from his stage play, Ray Cooney's movie is about John Smith (Danny Dyer), a bigamist taxi driver.

When a heroic act thrusts him into the limelight, his mate Gary (Neil Morrissey) has to help him cover up his marital deceptions, which only sparks further mayhem.

Featuring Denise Van Outen and Sarah Harding as John's unsuspecting wives, this film is embarrassingly bad. You'd be better off running for the exit.

FIVE'S CALIFORNIFANTASTIC

CALIFORNICATION – SEASON FIVE 18 ****
THERE'S nothing like a gangsta' rapper to inject new life into a long-running drama!

Californication creator Tom Kapinos said he wanted to take the show in a completely new direction in Season Five.

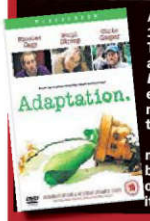
Of course, David Duchovny returns as Hank Moody, the big-boozing, shag-anything-that-moves novelist and screenwriter.

But this time, he returns to Los Angeles from New York after landing a screenwriting gig for rap mogul Samurai Apocalypse, played by the Wu-Tang Clan's RZA.

What could possibly go wrong?

The writing is as slick as ever and Duchovny continues to impress as the womanising writer. More importantly, it sets thing up perfectly for another few seasons.

BARGAIN BIN DVD OF THE WEEK



ADAPTATION (2003)
15  (£1.26 at Play.com)
THE odds of Charlie Kaufman and Spike Jonze following up Being John Malkovich with an even more bizarre and brilliant movie looked slim – and then they gave us Adaptation.

It's a metaphysical, post-modern masterpiece that blurs the lines between fact and fiction like no other film. But more importantly, it's a right royal hoot!

The story is that screenwriter Kaufman was struggling to adapt Susan Orlean's book The Orchid Thief for the big screen.

His answer? Enlist the help of director Jonze and turn creative problems into the subject of the movie, which morphs into an intelligent examination of the movie-making process. Genius!

Nicholas Cage plays Kaufman, as well as the writer's fictional twin. Seeing really is believing.

The Best Books With JON WISE

ISLE OF NOISES by Daniel Rachel (Picador) *****
THERE are precious few routes to wealth and fame for bog-standard, state educated, working class kids.

Joining a band and making it big is one – but it's not enough to be able to hold a tune, knocking out a classic is where the money's made.

But how to go about it the right way? Is there even a right way.

Maybe not. What you can do, though, is learn from how the songwriting masters did it – thanks to this long overdue and excellent book.

Rachel has had the nous and balls to tap up over 20 of the biggest names in music and probe them on their skills.

Ray Davies, John Lydon, Jimmy Page, Johnny Marr and Noel Gallagher and more, covering all genres. And Chaz Jankel is a delight.

Rachel is a really intelligent, clued-up and musically astute interviewer and his book is worth more than its hefty weight.

THE WISDOM OF PSYCOPATHS by Kevin Dutton (Arrow) ****
ARE you a nutjob? An outright murderous steaming headcase with a particularly menacing stare and a need to be in at the kill with a merciless detachment?

You say no, but not so fast. It could be you've got all the attributes of Hannibal Lecter and just don't know it. Saints, spies and serial killers share plenty of characteristics, according to Mr Dutton. As do top salesmen, business tycoons, hero soldiers and other successful types.

What's more, all the qualities of those we regard as mentalists are needed more and more in the modern world.

Enlightening, entertaining and positively scary.

Fava beans, anyone?

TOP DOG: Olivia goes topless in Alpha Dog but not in her super new movie Rush

RUSH
15 ★★★★

BUCKLE-UP, folks – this top gear movie about the 1976 Formula 1 season will take you on the most rip-roaring ride you're likely to experience all year.

And by the time Rush screeches to a halt after two thrilling hours, you'll be gagging for one more high-speed lap around the track.

The movie tells the story of the fierce rivalry between chalk-and-cheese drivers James Hunt and Niki Lauda in the 1970s.

A heavy-drinking womaniser with a God-given talent Hunt, played by Chris Hemsworth, made George Best look like the most virtuous monk in the monastery.

In stark contrast his nemesis Niki Lauda, played by Daniel Bruhl, was methodical and ultra-sensible, shunning the playboy lifestyle favoured by Hunt.

Directed by Ron Howard – aka Richie Cunningham from Happy Days – Rush is a character study of two sportsmen at the top of their game.

With Hunt providing the focal point, there are plenty of opportunities for the filmmaker to delve into the saucier side of the legendary Lothario's private life.

And as well as depicting the mullet-sporting driver's dalliances with any number of floozies, Howard also highlights his relationship with his model wife Suzy Morris, played by Olivia Wilde, 29.

Considering Yorker Olivia's topless performance in 2006 movie Alpha Dog you might have had high hopes for a boobs-out appearance in Rush – but on this occasion, she keeps her curves covered up.

Working to Peter Morgan's near-faultless script, Howard has delivered a film with slick dialogue and fantastic performances from both Hemsworth and Bruhl.

But it's when the drivers take to the track that the movie really revs up, and the adrenaline-fuelled racing sequences are just as exhilarating as any white knuckle ride.

You'll be so captivated by the cinematic spectacle on show that thoughts of a pit-stop won't even enter your head.

Don't miss it!

TOP 5 SPORTS BIOPICS

HOW do you possibly hold an audience's attention when just about everyone knows what's coming?

That's probably the toughest question facing directors who decide to tell a famous sports star's life story on the big screen.

But it certainly doesn't put them off giving it a go. And why would it? A handful of biopics inspired by the lives of athletes are among the best movies.

As well as Rush, this week sees the release of 42 (left), which tells the story of Jackie Robinson, the first African-American baseball player to represent a Major League team.

While there aren't any guarantees of box office success, these five brilliant films are proof that sports biopics can be worth a gamble...

MOVIE NEWS

ACTOR Charlie Hunnam says the kinky sex scenes in Fifty Shades Of Grey will be a small fry compared to his bumming antics in Queer As Folk!

Fans of E.L. James's raunchy novel have given a lukewarm reception to the decision to cast Hunnam as the suave, bondage-loving Christian Grey in the upcoming movie adaptation.

The Sons Of Anarchy star, 33, who's from Newcastle, will appear alongside Yank babe Dakota Johnson, 23, who'll play Anastasia Steele.

And he's reassured the book's avid fans, saying he's had all the practise he needs.

He said: "My first job was on a Channel 4 miniseries called Queer as Folk. It was incredibly explicit sexual scenes with a man.

"I mean I'm 16 and 17 years wiser now. So if I could do it when I was 18 with a guy, I can certainly do it at 33 with a lady."

On Johnson, he added: "It felt kind of exciting and fun and weird and compelling, and so that was it."

The film version of Fifty Shades of Grey will be released next August and is directed by Nowhere Boy helmer Sam Taylor-Johnson.

IN A WORLD...

15 ★★★★

SMART, witty and incredibly sexy – lovely Lake Bell is exactly the kind of feminist we're happy to get right behind in a bra-burning bonanza!

Proving she's more than just a pretty face, the foxy actress has also written and directed her latest movie In A World..., a quirky comedy.

The film tells the story Carol Solomon, a struggling vocal coach who wants to break into the male-dominated world of movie-trailer voiceovers.

Essentially, it's a female empowerment tale, which takes a swipe at Hollywood and sexist blokes while weaving-in a romance yarn.

And although it sounds exactly like the type of horrible movie Germaine Greer and her hairy armpit brigade will love, it's actually very good.

In the film, Carol, played by Bell, finds herself in direct competition with the undisputed king of the voiceover – her DAD.

There's also a subplot about her older sister Dani, played by Michaela Watkins, and her boyfriend Moe (Rob Corddry).

In A World...* is funny and interesting, but the main reason why it's so successful is because Black Rock star Bell's political message isn't too in-your-face.

It helps that the main star and filmmaker is easy on the eye, too!

HAPPY TO SWIM IN FEMINIST BELL'S LAKE

RAGING BULL (1980)

ROBERT De Niro plays boxer Jake LaMotta in Martin Scorsese's truly hard-hitting movie.

The film simultaneously lays out the fiery-tempered fighter's rise to the top of the sport and the destruction of his personal life.

ALI (2001)

THE life story of charismatic boxer Muhammad Ali was adapted for the screen by director Michael Mann.

THE BLIND SIDE (2009)

DIRECTED by John Lee Hancock The Blind Side tells the story of Michael Oher, a homeless boy who became an All American football player after being taken in by a loving family.

Sandra Bullock won the Oscar for Best Actress in honour of her performance in the film, which is truly inspirational and moving.

THE FIGHTER (2010)

DAVID O. Russell's film looks at the early years of boxer 'Irish' Micky Ward and his crack addicted brother Dicky Eklund, who helped train him in the mid-1980s.

Mark Wahlberg and Christian Bale both won plaudits for their portrayals of the pair.

MONEYBALL (2011)

MOST people in Britain hadn't heard of baseball player turned manager Billy Beane before Bennett Miller's movie was released.

Starring Brad Pitt in the lead role, it focuses on Beane's time in charge of the Oakland A's where he successfully assembled a team on a lean budget by employing computer-generated analysis to acquire new players.

Carol McGiffin

JUST what's Celebrity Big Brother babe Carol McGiffin's problem?

You'd think having spent what seems like 100 years fronting an all-woman TV show she'd have some sense of sisterhood.

But evidently any solidarity between Carol and her fellow females seems to have passed her by. In fact, it seems the only way you can guarantee Carol being nice is if you have a COCK!

For anyone out there with enough time to watch Celebrity Big Brother they might have seen the old witch in action.

In between slagging off pretty much every female housemate, whilst sucking up to all the blokes, Carol got her cranky claws out again and called Charlotte Crosby a 'Geordie slag'.

Please! This is coming from the woman who has made a career talking about her sex life on national TV.

She's bragged about an affair with a married man, blabbed about getting rogered by two blokes in a tent, and boasted she's been done in cars, behind a church, on the bathroom floor and in a Butlin's chalet. Classy, Carol, classy.

The word 'sad and desperate' come to mind. They should have named the show Loose Woman.

Thank God CBB is nearly over and she's quit the ITV1 panel show.

Now at least I don't have to watch a 53-year-old Iggy Pop lookalike who is labouring under the misapprehension she is some sort of MILF talk about getting her leg-over with her toyboy.

It's enough to make me h

GET FACT

BREAKING Bad, the most talked about telly show for years, is set to reach a dramatic conclusion at the end of this month.

The Yank programme tells the story of Walter White, a high school chemistry teacher who starts making crystal meth after being diagnosed with cancer.

But how much do you really know about the show that's just as addictive as the drugs that are at its heart? Check out these facts!

1. JOHN Cusack and Matthew Broderick were both offered the role of Walt White before it was handed to Bryan Cranston.

2. THE blue meth featured in the show is actually coloured rock candy.

3. BREAKING Bad was originally set in Riverside, California, but was moved to Albuquerque, New Mexico, to take advantage of a tax rebate on production.

4. BRYAN was eventually cast based on his performance in an episode of The X-Files.

5. JESSE'S house was sold while the show's second season was being shot. Every interior shot from season three onwards was on a set built to be slightly bigger than the real thing.

FIVE MINUTES

WITH SUMMER ST CLAIR

SEXY Summer St Claire just loves shagging in places she might get caught.

By KELLY JENKINS
kelly@sundaysport.co.uk

The ravishing 32E babe likes to bonk in the back of her motor in empty car parks – and doesn't care if people can see her.

The blonde stunna, 21, from Horsham in West Sussex, said: "The risk of getting caught is really exciting!

"I want to do it in the sea or in a jacuzzi next."

Summer says her best asset is her bum – and even admits she enjoys ANAL sex.

We sat down with the gorgeous hottie to talk naughty lingerie, sex toys, wild one-night stands and all her intimate bedroom secrets.

WHAT'S YOUR FAVOURITE POSITION?
I like a bit of variety in the bedroom, but I think being on top is always the best. I like to be in control and it's the ultimate power trip for a girl. It's great for the guy too… obviously.

SO ARE YOU DOMINANT OR SUBMISSIVE?
I like to mix it up, but I'm probably more dominant. I love being on top and getting what I want in the bedroom. I'm like that with everything – I can be a diva.

DO YOU HAVE ANY SEX TOYS?
Yes, I have got quite a few. My favourite has got to be the rabbit – it has little ears that work on your clit and a rotating shaft. It's amazing!

I also like the bullet. It's small and silver and vibrates really fast and hard. They both feel really good. I use them on myself when I'm alone, but I like to use them in the bedroom when I'm with a guy, too. It spices things up nicely.

DO YOU LIKE DRESSING UP FOR SEX?
Yeah, I love it! I've got loads of really sexy lingerie, stockings, suspenders and high heels. I don't have any unusual outfits, but I do have a hell of a lot of sexy gear from Ann Summers.

WHAT'S THE KINKIEST THING YOU LIKE TO DO IN THE BEDROOM?
I really like having my hair pulled during sex. Don't ask me why, it just really turns me on! Like, if a guy is taking me from behind and pulls on my hair – it's really sexy.

DO YOU LIKE ORAL SEX?
Of course. Who doesn't?

DO YOU PREFER GIVING IT OR RECEIVING?
I like both, but I prefer giving it because you're pleasuring your partner and I really get off on that.

I'd say I'm quite good at it. I've definitely picked up some tips over the years.

I've been told that I'm very good. It's all about your technique – and giving the guy eye contact while you suck him off. That drives men wild.

ANY SEXUAL FANTASIES?
I'd really love to do it in the sea or in a jacuzzi. I've never done that, but the thought of it really turns me on.

In the sea would be great because you've got the sun on your back and it would be totally uninhibited.

And in a jacuzzi would be really sensual and romantic. The next guy I go on holiday with is going to be a lucky fella.

WHERE'S THE WEIRDEST PLACE YOU HAVE EVER HAD SEX?
I've done it in a car a few times. We'd pull over to a quiet spot on a country lane and turn off the lights.

I've also done it in a car park near where I used to work. A lot of people live round there, so the risk of getting caught was really exciting.

It's quite an open space, so people could definitely see what we were up to if they looked out of their window or walked past. I did it there a few times. We'd push the seats forward and do it in the back.

HAVE YOU EVER HAD A LESBIAN ENCOUNTER?
I've kissed my mates on nights out, usually when I'm absolutely wasted. I'll say, 'Come here and give me a snog!' Girls are softer and more gentle. It's more sensual than kissing a guy.

HAVE YOU EVER HAD A THREESOME?
No, it's just not for me. I think sex should only involve two people.

HAVE YOU EVER INDULGED IN ROLE-PLAY?
I've never tried it. God, I sound so boring! I would give it a go though, if the right guy came along and he was up for it. I think I'd make a very sexy secretary or French maid.

ARE YOU GOOD IN BED?
I like to think so! It's all about how you interact with each other before-hand. If there's no communication or eye contact, then it's not going to be a good shag.

It's all about the foreplay and the build-up. I'm really intuitive when it comes to sex; I get an idea of what a guy wants and I run with it.

Having lots of eye contact and a connection makes sex really hot.

HOW IMPORTANT IS FOREPLAY TO YOU?
I think it's really important – without it you're not going to be as relaxed and up for it.

It's always nice to have a romantic evening first. My perfect night in is a movie and bottle of wine, then to just see where the night takes us.

SO, WHAT CAN A GUY DO IN THE BEDROOM TO TURN YOU ON?
I love it when a guy talks dirty to me in the bedroom. I like the guy to tell me exactly what he wants and what he enjoys.

I'll do the same – just talking about it before you do it gets you both in the mood. Good sex is all about good communication. I really like having my neck kissed too.

WITH...

WEEKEND Sport HOME OF TOPLESS BABES

ONE NIGHT STAND OR LONG-TERM RELATIONSHIP?
I've had both, but I think it is generally better when you know the person.

I think you're more comfortable and feel sexier – which makes you more confident and willing to experiment.

But it depends.

Obviously if you don't know the person and you're never going to see them again, it's not going to matter. So you can let yourself go a bit wild.

DOES SIZE MATTER?
I'm a lucky girl and have only ever been with guys who've been big in that department!

But I do think it completely depends on how they use it and all the other things they do in the bedroom. A guy who's got a big willy but is completely clueless is no use to anyone!

WHAT'S YOUR BEST ASSET?
I think my bum is my best asset. Obviously I've got great boobs, but everyone sees them all the time because of what I do. So guys seem to like to grab my bum and my hips!

HAVE YOU EVER HAD ANAL SEX?
Yes.

DO YOU ENJOY IT?
Not when it's unexpected! I've had guys slip out during sex and go in the other hole by accident – that was horrible!

But when it's done properly and lots of lube is used, it can be quite sexy. After about five minutes I usually get into.

UP ALL WEEKEND MOTORS

DAIMLER SUPER V8
(1999, £9,950)

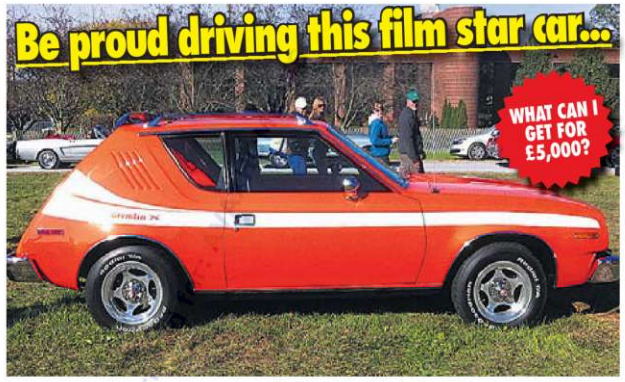
IF it's good enough for the Queen's delicate posterior, it's more than good enough for your hairy arse.

Her Majesty's old car, a Daimler Super V8, sold at auction last week for a whopping £40,000.

Queen Liz's 2001 motor had only done 15,000 miles and came in British Racing Green colour. But you don't need forty grand to get yourself a right regal runabout, because just TEN should do the trick.

You get a silky-smooth 4.0 litre engine bolted to an automatic gearbox, and the sort of walnut and leather interior that definitely wouldn't look amiss in Buckingham Palace – and one of the posh rooms they save for those special occasions.

A 0-60mph time Of 5.4 seconds and top speed of 155mph should get you to that royal function on time, too.



AMC GREMLIN
(1972, £4,500)

THE star is the car for many a movie. Pity the AMC Gremlin, then, because despite featuring in hundreds of Hollywood flicks, this quirky cult classic never really gets the attention it deserves.

A growing fans' club – both here and across the Pond – is putting the Gremlin back on the map and several used vehicles are for sale in Blighty.

It's small for a Yank car but the engine is as big as you would expect – a stonking 5.0 litre V8 is the one the collectors are going for.

And if you get one, be proud in the knowledge you're sat behind the same steering wheel as film stars like Adam Sandler in The Wedding Singer, the mum in Edward Scissorhands, and rockers Weezer in the single to their smash hit Beverly Hills.

PONTIAC AZTEK
(2001, £999)

WE barely bring ourselves to look at this monstrosity – surely one of the ugliest cars ever to clutter up a road. It looks like a Toyota Prius with a tequila hangover!

The Aztek recently got plenty of screen time in top telly show Breaking Bad – it's the car lead character Walter White drives around while peddling his meth. But not even appearing on the box can turn the Aztek into something you'd ever want – unless, that is, you're a die-hard fan.

As well as style to make a petrolhead sick a little in his mouth, you also get a 3.4 litre V6 as well as the option of 4x4.

The latter should come in handy when you eventually drive off-road.... to get to the edge of that cliff you're about to push it off.

WITH THE PURPLE HELMET

GAS GUZZLER IS STILL AN EXCITING BEAST

THE 'GT' bit in this uber-swanky Bentley V8 S stands for 'grand tourer'.

And we can't think of anywhere else we'd rather park ourselves in for a cross-Europe jaunt.

But just make sure you've packed your wallet for the trip – as it's not just an expensive bastard to buy, it'll also cripple you in fuel bills.

For all its weighty and ponderous proportions, the Bentley is no luxury barge.

This new model, which made its debut at the Frankfurt Motor Show this week, features lowered and stiffened suspension to give the sort of ride to make most sports cars weep with envy.

The 'S' model also gets an additional front splitter, side sill extensions, bespoke 20in alloy wheels and a rear diffuser.

Breathtaking

It also comes with a gloss black radiator grille with single chrome divider, and "figure of eight" exhaust tail pipes – so it looks swanky enough too.

There's an all-new beast underneath that gleaming bonnet as well. The standard 4.0 litre V8 petrol engine has been uprated from 500 to 521bhp, while torque has also been boosted from 487lb ft to 502lb ft.

Transmission comes from an 8-speed automatic gear box and four wheel drive, which is smoother than a polished slug's underbelly.

Meanwhile, 0-60mph times are a breathtaking 4.3 seconds, while the top speed has been upped by 4mph to 192mph.

All that performance comes at a cost – fuel consumption figures are just a shade over 20mpg.

But Dr Wolfgang Schreiber, chairman and chief executive, Bentley Motors, reckons the car oozes "drama and excitement".

HONDA MINI STREET EXTREME
(£2,600)

THE term 'ideal first bike' is one that gets bandied about a lot in the motorcycle industry.

Often, dog-ugly pieces of crap that just happen to be 125cc are even given that title.

But this keenly-priced, saucily-styled new Honda well and truly deserves such a tag.

It being a Honda, you can always rely on the MSX125's mechanicals standing the test of time.

And not only does it look good, but the nifty little engine has been set up to wring every last drop of fuel economy from your tank – you're talking almost 75mpg – rather than blistering performance.

That makes this two-wheeled gem exceptionally cheap to run – and it's a definite bonus that it's easy on the eye, too.

BMW F800 ST
(2009, £2,999)

BIKERS can be forgiven for having been lulled into a false sense of security over the past three months.

The summer has been sensational and we've all been hammering it around corners safe in the knowledge that the tarmac in front of us is warm, dry and grippy.

Now, though, the sodden UK roads are a little less confidence-inspiring – the Purple Helmet has been going into soggy left handers with buttocks clenched.

But if you're on the right bike, riding in all weathers is more than doable.

Take the BMW F800 ST, for example. On the one hand it's got a stonking big fairing and heated grips, so you don't end up with hypothermia in a downpour.

And it's also light enough to chuck about, giving you feedback from terra firma when you need it most.

SCARE WE GO AGAIN!

OUTLAST (PC)

HERE'S a tip. If you're ever investigating an abandoned mental asylum and you're in a corridor with an overturned wheelchair and blood and shit everywhere – just f* off.

Go home. Watch Corrie. Eat some crisps. Have a wank. Check your Fantasy Football stats – do whatever. Just DON'T walk down that corridor.

Because if you do, like the daft twat you play in this game, you deserve everything that's coming. And that's being chased around in the darkness by psycho nutters with skin problems and meat cleavers.

This isn't usually a problem for us veteran gamers. We've been raised on a diet of psycho violence games and when some axe-wielding loonball comes at you – you blow its fing head off.

The problem here is that your only weapon is a crappy video camera that helps you see in the dark – and it doesn't fire rockets or owt. So you've got no option but to peg it.

It's a bit shit really. But it helps make this scary as f – especially if you stick headphones on and play it in the dark. Problem is, you soon realise the monster maniac types are bottlers.

If you stop running and let one come at you, they're just fing rubbish.

It's like being slapped around with a kipper by Gok Wan. They knock you a few times and you just walk off.

It's still scary, like, but after a bit it does get boring. Every time it goes quiet, you know there's going to be some big loud scary 'event'.

It's a good effort but how's about we stop making games in which you don't do f all apart from run around? This game would be 100 million times better if you had a shotgun and rocket launcher.

OVERALL RATING: Carol Kirkwood
PSYCHO VIOLENCE: Quality gore and blood splatter.
FACT: Bedlam Mental Asylum in Bromley, London used to attract 100,000 visitors each year to gawp at the crazies.

GAMES NEWS

THE soon-to-be released Metal Gear Solid 5 has been slagged off for having a character that looks....too sexy. Halo designer David Ellis tweeted that the big-titted sniper babe, Quiet, is 'disgusting'. So that's deffo going to put off loads of randy gamer nerds from buying it.

Edge of insanity

MOST impressive idiot of the week is some Cambridge bloke who has recreated Mirror's Edge by dressing like the game character, strapping a camera to his head and jumping off rooftops. The fella, using the name 'ampisound', has posted a nutty, but impressive, video on YouTube.

Bare essentials

OH boy. This Oculus Rift virtual reality headset is just getting better and better. They've now released a preview demo which shows real-life scans of sexy topless models which you can walk around and 'inspect' in intimate detail. Wahoo!! Stock up on bog roll and Pot Noodles – soon as this thing's released, there's no reason to ever leave the house.

BEEN THERE,

THE BUREAU: XCOM DECLASSIFIED (XBOX/PS3)

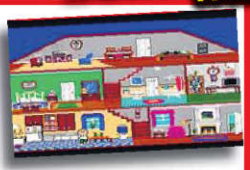
IF you fancy becoming a billionaire who lives in a castle with a zoo containing porn stars dressed as big cats then just invent something that blocks out cut scenes from video games.

It should work like an ad blocker, but instead of removing offers for Zappos (whatever the f* that is), it removes any traces of story or 'narrative' from a game. This would mean that you could play The Bureau and not have to sit through 20 minutes of cut-scene wankery before enjoying the novelty of actually being able to control something.

Story shite is the curse of modern gaming and, like a fish with bones, it needs filleting. I can't stomach any more of this gravelly-voiced bollocks.

Back in the 90s these XCOM games were class. You had a little team of fellas who you moved

RETRO CORNER 1985



LITTLE COMPUTER PEOPLE (MULTI)

MORE The Sims games have been released than Wayne Rooney has artificial hairs on his tiny baldy head.

By the time you've finished reading this sentence another five or six crappy The Sims updates/add-ons/expansion packs will have been shovelled out on to the shelves.

It's become the most profitable franchise in gaming history and it can all be traced back to a tiny game back in the 80s that no bugger played.

Because Little Computer People sounded like a really daft idea – and it was.

This was a game in which you didn't do anything. You just watched this little fella as he tootled around a kind of doll's house. You couldn't shoot him. You couldn't control him.

It was clever because each disc sold was slightly different and spawned a unique fella – he looked different and had a slightly different personality.

Once you started, he would let himself into the house and then potter about. Sometimes he played the piano. Sometimes he stuffed his face with food.

The only thing you could do was watch him. You could type messages to interact but you soon found out that he didn't really give a toss. So you'd get pissed off, try swearing at him – but still no response.

And then a weird thing happened – you kept watching. It was insanely addictive in the same way that years later, you'd be watching Z-list celebs eating biscuits on Big Brother.

This game didn't sell well but it planted a seed that, 15 years later, would see the first ever The Sims game released.

SCENE IT, DONE IT!

around and whacked aliens. It was great – a neat little strategy game. But now XCOM is an excuse to tell you some fing rubbish story about....I don't care. Strip all that out and you're left with an okay third-person shooter. It's a bit like a not very good version of Mass Effect 2. It's set in the 1950s so everyone wears hats and you're going to spend most of your time hiding behind barriers while shooting rubbish-looking aliens and ordering your teammates around. All this is mildly enjoyable. But until somebody invents my story blocker, it's not worth sitting through the crap cut scenes for.

OVERALL RATING: Carol McGiffin

PSYCHO VIOLENCE: Nowt.

FACT: The world record for the longest cuts cene is Metal Gear Solid 4 with a life-threatening 71-minute sequence.

KELLY GILHOOLY: 24, 34EE, Salford. Shanks and Bigfoot – Sweet Like Chocolate (1999)

"All my mates were buying Steps, Vengaboys, Boyzone – crap like that. So I started looking for the complete opposite and this was the first I bought! I still put it on before a night out so its cool street grooves get me in the mood!"

EX DEO @ Soundcontrol, Manchester, Wednesday, Spetember 11 ★★★★★

MANCHESTER'S Soundcontrol has been championing extreme metal bands for a while now and the latest band to grace its stage was Canada's Ex Deo. The intimate venue was packed to the rafters with headbangers and the atmosphere was jumping as Maurizio Iacono and co waded into their set. Decked out in their trademark centurion armour, Ex Deo played a handful of tracks from their debut album Romulus and last year's follow-up Caligvla, but it was their epic thrash ballad The Final War that proved to be the crowd pleaser of the night. I saw these guys play pretty much the exact same set to an audience of 15,000 at Bloodstock last month and they played with the same intensity and amount of effort to the fans on hand tonight. An epic night of metal malevolence!

SEBADOH: Defend Yourself ★★★★★

MASSACHUSETTS rockers Sebadoh are one of the bands who pioneered the Lo-Fi sound and Defend Yourself is their tenth album. They're known for producing catchy, memorable serrated-pop compositions and have honed this skill to perfection on Defend Yourself. founding frontman Lou Barlow's vocals are as honest and heartbroken as ever and the distorted guitars chug along nicely throughout. Opening track I Will starts off a bit subdued before the second verse kicks in, from then on it's a slab of rock bliss. Elsewhere, beat is a bass heavy tune with a great, discordant (slightly out-of-tune) riff that would appeal to fans of sonic Youth. Other highligts include Calves Of Champions and let It Out; The first is a lively, marching track which reminded me of The Decemberists a little, the latter is a slowed down love song, the kind that Sebadoh do so well. This is joyous listening from start to end.

SARKE: Aruagint ★★★★★

NORWAY'S Sarke started life as the musical project of founding member Thomas Bergli, today they're something of a black metal supergroup, sporting members from such heavyweight bands as Darkthrone and Satyricon. Aruagint is their third release and it's an absolute BEAST. The guitars are thick and chunky and the riffs are stripped down and effective and have a nice doomy, groove to 'em. Bergli's vocals are guttural and mocking in tone – not unlike Cathedral frontman Lee Dorian's. In fact, it's safe to say that if your a fan of the latter, you'll love Sarke. Opening track Jaunt Of The Obsessed is an instant head-swiveller played out with a galloping pace. Elsewhere, Jodau Aura is a huge, expansive soundscape with an awesome dark, mellodic chorus. Another stand out track is Salvation; s storming tune with bluesy, Sabbath-esque hook to it. Sarke sound a bit like a slowed-down version of Slayer combined with the menacing sound of such classic bands as Mayhem and Venom. It's dark stuff but Aruagint also has some pretty uplifting moments too. Each composition well put together and very listenable. Sarke are undoubtably heavy hitters on the new wave of traditional metal scene.

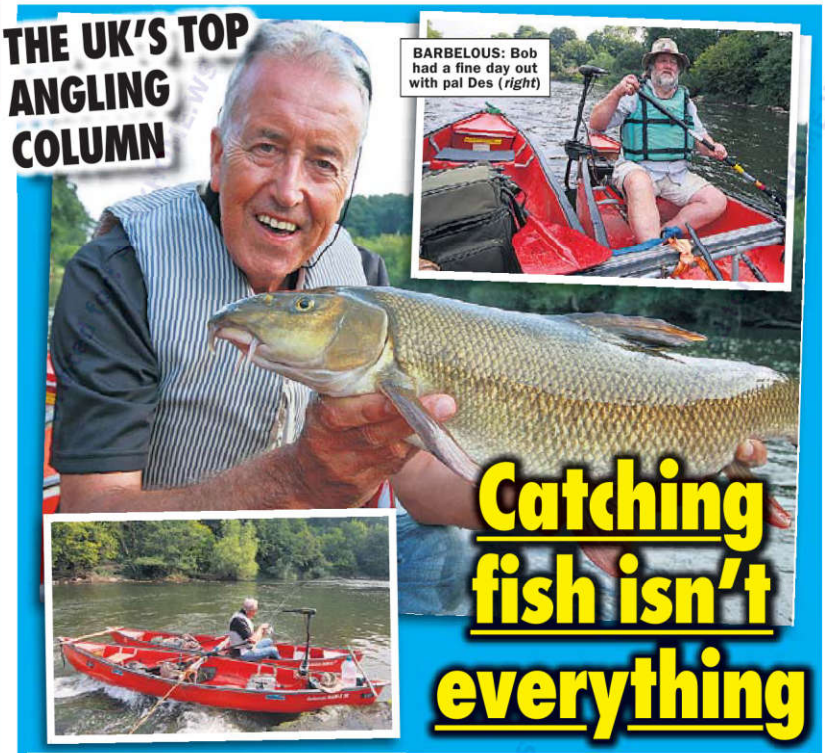
THE UK'S TOP ANGLING COLUMN



BARBELOUS: Bob had a fine day out with pal Des (right)

Catching fish isn't everything

THERE are those who will measure a successful day's fishing by what they catch, and there are competitive anglers who'll measure it by whom they beat or how big a fish they caught – and that's fine.

By contrast I tend to measure my days by where I went, who I fished with and what I saw, what I actually catch is less important these days.

Last week I enjoyed one of the best fishing experiences of my life in the company of my old mate, Angling Times columnist Des Taylor.

Des and I go back a long way and I'm glad I can't remember how many times he's got me drunk! He's great company, a real character and a terrific angler to boot.

This summer he launched a guiding service with a twist on the River Severn near his home in Bewdley.

"You've really got to come down and have a trip when you get a chance, Bob. It's fabulous! Just give me a ring when you're ready."

So it was I rocked up at his house at 7.30am last week, Margaret made a brew and after a short catch-up we were on our way up the Severn Valley to our canoes.

Two canoes are strapped together to create a stable platform, Des in one and up to two guests in the other. There's even an electric motor to make rowing less taxing.

With all the gear safely stowed inboard we set of on our adventure – and you know what, we were like kids again. Angling's not meant to be a serious business but it's rare to laugh as much as we did on a fishing trip.

The Severn is a spectacular river at the best of times but never is it more beautiful than from water level. Flanked by steep wooded hills, the sounds of the Severn Valley Railway are ever present. The track follows the river and although the steam trains are mostly hidden by the trees you'll spot the smoke plumes and certainly hear them chugging and whistling.

After gently drifting downstream for 10 minutes, Des pulled into his first spot.

"We'll catch barbel here," he said, confidently. And sure enough I was hooked into a bronze torpedo within minutes of mooring up.

"It's not about catching loads of fish, or big fish," said Des. "Folk ask me if they'll catch a big kipper on these trips and I tell 'em, "You're on the wrong trip mate!"

He does take customers on guided trips where big fish are the target but the canoe adventure is simply that. An adventure. A day out in the company one of the most recognisable faces and biggest characters in angling, a chance to visit lots of swims – some that are inaccessible from the bank – to pick his brains and to see the river in a completely different light.

And yes, you will catch fish as well!

With river levels at their lowest in a while a number of natural weirs become visible. In the canoes we were able to moor up on the lip and fish right into the hotspots.

FISHING WITH BOB ROBERTS

Des doesn't normally fish on these trips but as this wasn't a guiding trip he threw in a dropshot rod to see if he might catch a big perch.

Stepping out of the boat onto the exposed rocks of a weir to brew up his Kelly Kettle was a great idea. Stumbling and falling head first into the water wasn't quite so smart! But we laughed about it.

Fortunately the sun was shining and this was developing into one of those days that live on in the memory.

Again I caught a couple of barbel in double quick time before we moved on. I'm sure we could have sat tight in one swim and caught far more fish but where's the sense of adventure in that?

We spent nearly as much time observing wildlife as we did fishing and we were treated to a spectacular sight when a sparrowhawk swept across the river from right to left at high speed, narrowly missing my rod tip before crashing into a willow bush from which it emerged a few seconds later with a small bird firmly gripped in its talons.

More swims, more barbel. There were roach, chub and perch to be caught as well. Des had a pike but all too soon it was time to call it a day. Eight hours had flown by as it only does when you're having fun.

Along the way we had bumped into a mixed bag of friendly scoundrels that Des knew well. Folk in a riverside chalet who plied us with beer and coffee, a couple of anglers cutting out new swims, and a fellow boater who invited us to share his swim, not to mention the scattering of anglers whose swims we gently drifted through and were only too happy to share news of their captures with us.

Take a wild river, throw in two canoes and the wild man of Bewdley himself. How can you fail to have an adventure?

ALBANIA MANIA!

By NEIL GOODWIN
neil@sundaysport.co.uk

GET your bags packed for Europe's most unlikely new holiday destination...ALBANIA!

The European country – sandwiched between Greece, Montenegro, Kosovo and Macedonia, has long been the butt of international jokes.

There's even an internet meme called 'Meanwhile in Albania...' which takes the piss out of the nation's poverty and love of donkeys.

But Albania isn't all knackered Ladas, toothless women, and pet grizzly bears – it's billing itself as the hottest tourist destination since the emergence of nearby Croatia.

Top Albanian operator, Past and Present Journeys, said: "Albania, the last undiscovered treasure of Europe, has been secretly preserving its beauty.

"There are hundreds of kilometres of white-sand beaches and crystal-clear waters.

"Albania will not be considered as 'off the beaten track' for much longer."

Fancy rolling the dice and giving it whirl? Here's what you might have to look forward to...

MOUNTAIN HIKING

BACK in the 1980s, only a proper dickhead would wander about Albania's mountainous border regions.

It's a nation that once made North Korea look moderate, ruled by Communist leader Enver Hoxha from WWII up until his death in 1985.

He didn't like outsiders much, turning the country into an oppressive hermit state and thinking nothing of executing those who pissed him off.

Now Albania's eastern badlands are growing in popularity with hardcore hikers.

It's rough and rugged – the only 'luxury' you're going to get here are the boots on your feet.

The 120 mile long Peaks of the Balkans Trail cuts through three isolated national parks and will give you some proper blisters.

But don't worry about that, worry instead about the numerous wolves and lynxes padding through the nearby forests...

ROCK CLIMBING

AMERICA has Yosemite, France has Chamonix, and Albania has 'Theth' – a rock climbing mecca that attracts the world's hottest wall-crawlers.

The majority come to scale the towering 7,300ft south face of Mount Arapit – a lump of rock that makes the Eiger think, 'F* that for a game of soldiers....'

And the best thing about Albania is that the entire area is virtually unexplored, meaning you can fly over there, bag a 'first ascent', and get your name in the history books.

One word of caution – the mountain roads here make Britain's pot-holed streets look like a marble work-top.

If your motor of choice doesn't have four-wheel-drive, don't blame us when it skids off the gravel into a splattery oblivion.

BEACHES

ONE of the greatest assets of Albania – besides the local 'Rakia' brandy – is its fing massive stretches of coastline.

There's 300km of it along the Adriatic – and the chances of you finding a section rammed with sun-loungers and squawking Brits is pretty slim.

Spile Beach sits in front of a massive pine forest, so if the sun gets a bit too much you can totter off to find some shade....or somewhere to have a slash.

Saranda beach lies directly opposite the Greek island of Corfu and boasts crystal clear waters and not one chicken -in-a-basket in sight.

Meanwhile Ksamili beach (right) has won plaudits for its powdery white sands, with many experts comparing it to a Caribbean island.

RIVER RAFTING

IF the rampant brown bear population doesn't cause you to shit in your pants, the white water rapids might.

The Osumi river cuts through deep valleys and canyons that are dotted with massive waterfalls and cavernous pools.

Now several boat firms organise rafting trips for the brave or foolhardy.

The rapids are 'Class II', which means you don't need prior experience – but the waves will be massive enough to give you wee-stained Speedos.

If the rivers don't do it for you, you can sail the ferry across Lake Koman in the Albanian Alps, which is said to boast views just as stonking as those found in the Norwegian fjords.

You'll share the boat with peasant locals, best described as 'hardy', who'll jump off the ship to climb up the excruciatingly steep hills en route to their hidden villages.

PROPER CASTLES

MOST castles have a grim history, but you're usually talking medieval, not modern era.

But the big towering gaff in the Albanian city of Gjirokaster (below) has a proper chequered past.

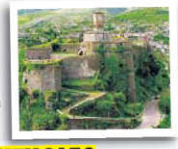
Not content with boasting a chilling reputation for the torture of enemies back in the 15th century, the castle's inhabitants were at it again last century.

In 1943 Albania's Italian occupiers surrendered to the Allies, so German troops invaded instead.

Albania didn't like that idea, and started shooting the f out of the Nazis with cannons and machine guns.

German might eventually won – 80 Albanians were randomly rounded up and prepared for the firing squad – before the Krauts eventually gave Albania back their castle in 1944.

The incident left the town a little damaged... with reports that the castle was used to torture and execute political prisoners there right up until 1968.



FRIENDLY SHITHOLES

KEEP telling yourself, it's 'rustic', not 'rat-infested'.

To be fair, Albania does a roaring trade in eco-style 'shepherd's lodges' that are a bit Tesco Value – but fabulous for getting back to nature after a day in the mountains.

On Maja Gjarper (which translates as 'Snake peak' – check your shoes for reptiles in the morning, folks!) families can stay in a traditional 'stan' guest house.

And they're a great way of watching brown bears – animals which the Albanian tourist board describes as 'gentle'. Fingers crossed.

And if a yurt isn't basic enough, you can also spend the night in the 'Shpella e Malsore', the Cave of the Old Malesori. She was a mad old lady who lived in the hole with her beloved goats, and you'll probably get cozy with a bleating bugger ,too.

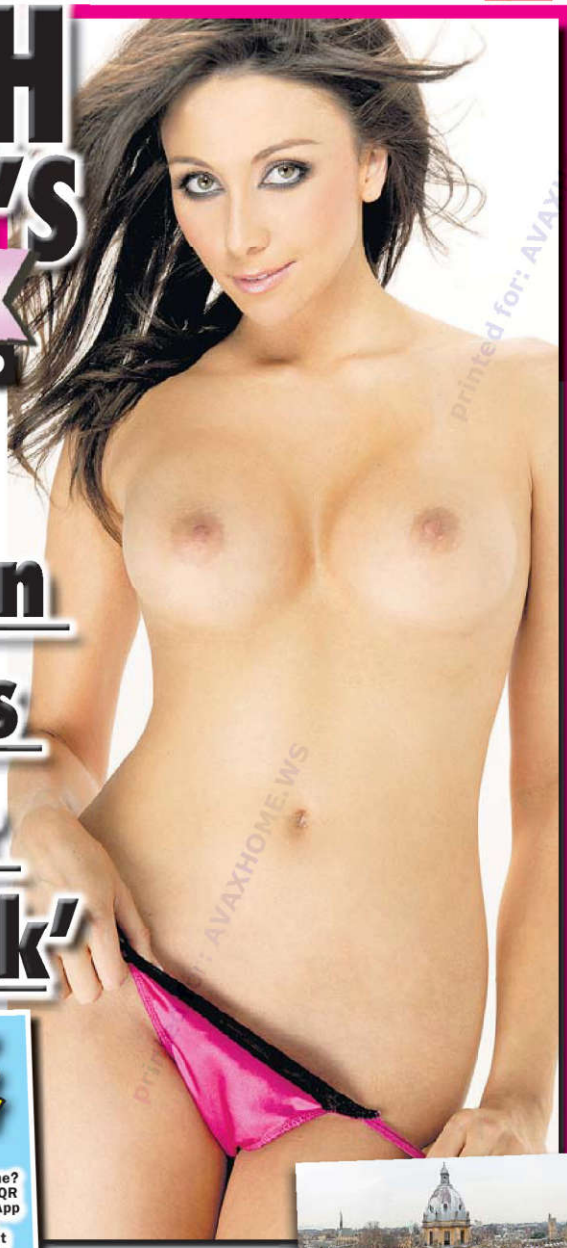
WEEKEND Sport's resident sex columnist Aaliyah Johnson is taking her X-rated antics on tour. Each week our babe reports on her kinky goings-on from different parts of the UK. Today Aaliyah visits the wet dreaming spires of Oxford...

AALIYAH JOHNSON'S Sex Diaries UK Tour

THIS WEEK: OXFORD

'Every little twist and turn of her fingers sent a quiver down my back'



I WAS invited to a chic model party at a stylish but discreet nightclub in the heart of Oxford.

Not knowing who would be there, I wanted to wear one of my new outfits and dress to impress – and it was Beth, the party organiser, who I wanted to impress the most.

Before long there was a big group of girls around our VIP table, and we were getting plenty of attention from the guys.

The models seemed to be getting tipsy, especially since we were given free champagne and vodka. They soon kicked their heels off, jumped onto the sofas and started dancing.

I noticed that Beth was all by herself. She looks really young and cute with gorgeous big eyes, but has a slightly alternative look, which I like.

She dresses differently to others, but I preferred how she was more understated. She was really gorgeous but didn't realise it.

Beth wore little denim shorts and a cropped T-shirt – the rest of us were all in tiny mini-dresses. As I spoke to her, I found myself becoming more attracted to her.

I was surrounded by loads of hot models, but I had no interest in them. Each time I saw a guy trying to dance with Beth, I got really protective and pushed them away. I had the advantage of being slightly taller than her, so I could subtly check her out without her seeing.

I loved it each time she bent down to pick up her drink, I could see right down her top. I hadn't really noticed before, but her boobs looked amazing.

Every now and then she caught me looking her way and gave me a cheeky smile. Sambuca shots were brought to our table, and Beth decided she wanted to feed me my shot.

I opened my mouth and she poured it down my throat. I don't enjoy doing shots normally, especially Sambuca, but because it was from her, I wasn't going to say no.

I was about to close my mouth and then she started to pour a second shot into my mouth. I wasn't prepared for it, so it spilt down my chin and all down my chest.

"Oh no, I'm really sorry," Beth said. "Let me go and find some tissues".

She tried to find some, but there weren't any around.

"Don't worry, I'll clean up the mess," Beth said, and to my surprise, she held onto my arms and licked all the way between my cleavage and up to my chin. She giggled afterwards and apologised, but I was in total shock – in a good way of course.

I was so grateful for that spilt shot, as that was the start of our flirting and cheeky behaviour the rest of the night.

Beth was sweet, but definitely had a hidden naughty side to her. Guys started to crowd round our table and tried to worm their way in with the models.

Beth and I slowly drifted away from the table, further onto the main dance floor. We didn't really talk much, but we danced close together, are arms around each other. The music changed and was more house and electro and she started to jump up and down a lot more. I actually enjoyed it, as I could feel her boobs bouncing up and down against my chest.

Our dancing eventually got a lot more raunchy, and our hands were all over each other.

HER hands were on my bum and kept sliding underneath my dress – guys were dancing around us but we ignored them as we were too into each other.

At one point Beth had me pressed up against one of the pillars on the dance floor and was grinding herself against me.

She was teasing me like crazy and I didn't know what to do with myself.

Then Beth needed to use the toilet, so she dragged me into the ladies. Without either of us saying a word, we both walked into the next available cubicle together.

With her eyes locked on mine, she brought one of her hands onto my chest, moving her fingers just underneath the fabric of my dress. She let her fingers trace along my skin. I heard the zip on my dress being pulled down, and the straps fell from my shoulders.

I stood before her topless, with my nipples rock hard. My eyes took in her seductive expression, as I slid my hands under her top.

"You are so beautiful," I said to her with amazement.

She smiled, moved in closer to me, ran her fingers through my hair and started to kiss my neck. I could feel the heat radiating from both of our bodies. Her boobs felt huge and they were so firm yet soft at the same time. I was so turned-on that she had no bra on under her top.

Her lips skilfully worked their way towards my lips. I instinctively closed my eyes, and my tongue reached out to touch hers. She pushed her tongue deeper into my mouth and my hands travelled down to her waist, and the small of her back, exploring her ultra-smooth body as we kissed.

I couldn't resist my need any longer. I undid the button on Beth's shorts and moved my hand down inside the opening. Beth began to squeeze my nipples with one hand, while the other hand lifted up the bottom of my dress.

At the same time as I slid my hand beneath Beth's legs, she'd worked her hand well into my knickers.

I was relishing the sensations that surged through my body. I tried not to make any noise, but knew that several moans escaped my mouth. I leaned against the wall for support as I felt my knees go weak.

I was so aroused and really wet, and I could feel that Beth was just as worked up as me. Our hearts were beating rapidly.

Beth inhaled a deep, aroused breath and rolled her head back against the wall, as I penetrated my fingers into her.

Our naked breasts were pressed against each other and we kissed non-stop. Every little twist and turn from Beth's fingers sent a pleasurable quiver down my spine.

In a final frenzy, Beth arched her body, dug her nails into my back and entered a peaking arousal. I knew Beth absolutely adored it, as her juices were flowing down her legs. I could feel myself approaching an orgasm too, as I watched Beth climax. Her facial expressions were so erotic.

It was that sight that pushed me over the edge.

Dear Jemma,

I HAD my first-ever threesome last week – me, my fella and his ex-girlfriend. It was ace!

My bloke suggested it – he and his ex still get on very well, and I've always liked her. She has great boobs and lovely long legs. He dumped her because she didn't want to get married, which is fair enough I reckon.

She came round and we opened a couple of bottles and got cosy on the sofa.

Once we were all lubricated we watched her peel off her clothes – and I was soon well lubricated in another place.

Me and my fella stripped too and we all started oiling each other's bodies with baby lotion.

Then she went down on me while I sucked my fella's knob, before I returned the favour as he did her from behind.

We were at it for hours and it was fantastic. But should we leave it at that?

CD, Teesside

Jemma says...

ABSOLUTELY not!

Dear Jemma,

MY wife is a wonderful woman but a bit of a bore in the bedroom.

As a result, I've had a number of girlfriends who've let me fulfill my fantasies.

One girl I had let me do her up the arse while using a vibrator on her.

So, as you can imagine, my wife has a lot to live up to between the sheets.

She has a mate who I really fancy and when I came home the other night her pal was there.

They'd a had a bit to drink and were fooling around with our old camcorder.

My missus whispered to me, "It's your lucky night" – but I was baffled until the two of them led me upstairs and stripped slowly and enticingly as I lay on the bed.

When they were naked they gave me the camcorder and told me to film as they indulged in lesbo action.

My wife! Lesbo action! I couldn't believe it.

But it got better when they lay back on the bed and invited me to do both of them.

I had no hesitation as I leapt on the wife's pal, thinking that my missus would think better of it when she sobered up.

But not a bit!

The wife filmed the whole thing and now watches it endlessly. But there's still not much bedroom action with her.

What's going on?

TG, Essex

Jemma says...

SIT down, watch the film with her and ask what's the crack.

Dear Jemma,

I THINK I'm addicted to sex.

I'm a blonde 32-year-old with 34DD tits and as you can imagine I get loads of attention.

I've had lots of fellas and I love sucking cock.

I recently had my first shag with two blokes and it's turned me into a nympho.

Last week I went with four blokes who'd been in the pub where I work and I took them back to my place. It wasn't long before I was naked and had a dick in my arse, my fanny and two in my mouth.

It was fantastic as I swallowed loads of their man-juice. I could also feel it all dribbling down my thighs.

This weekend I'm meeting these blokes again and two more of their mates.

Do you think my behaviour is OK or does the fact that I'm about to have it off with six men mean I'm abnormal?

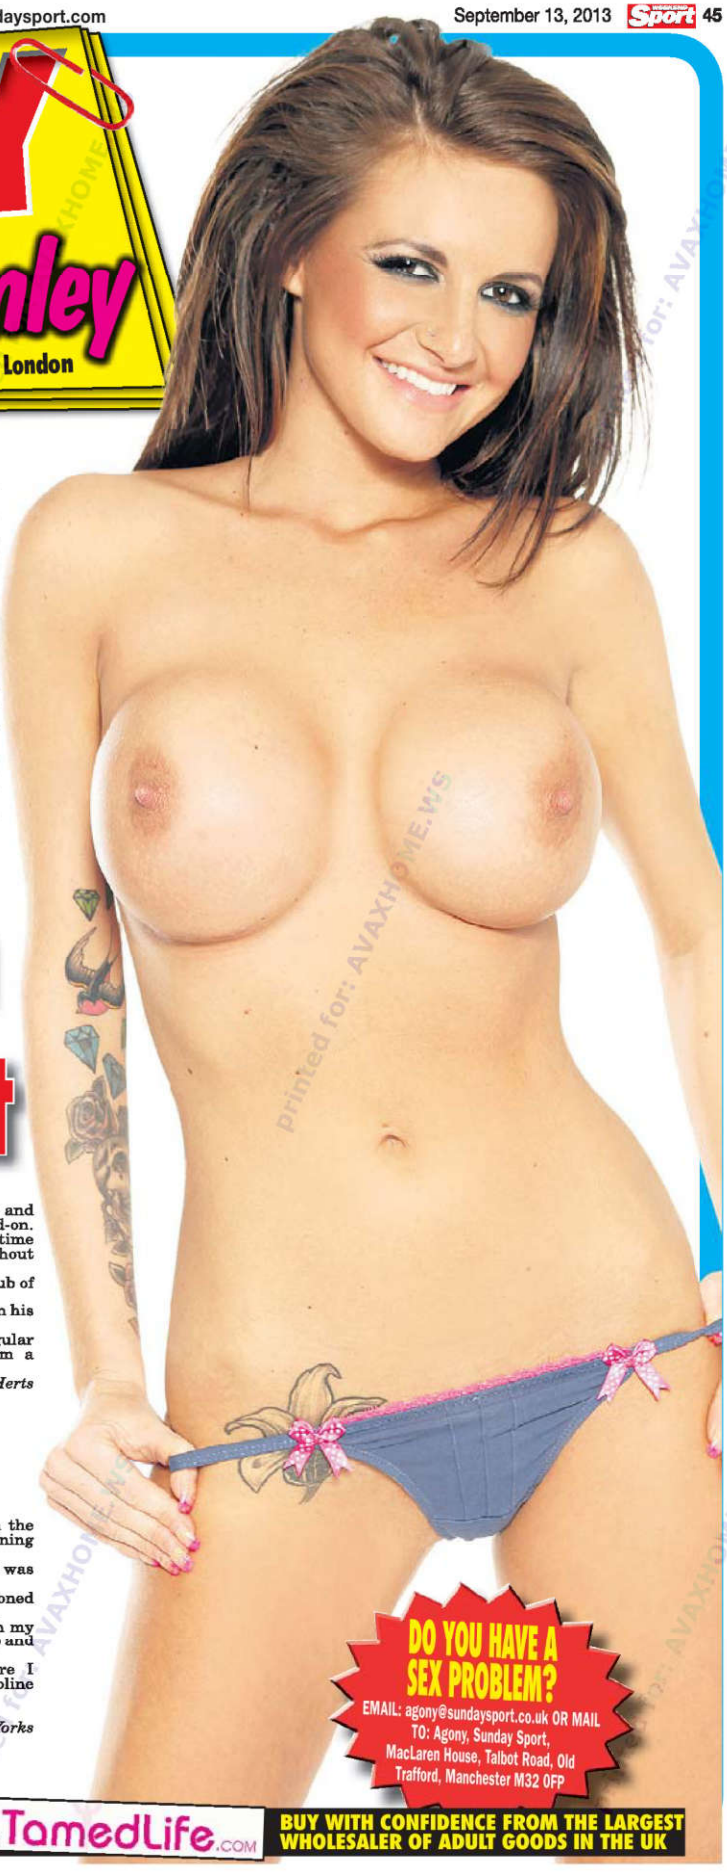
LG, Lancashire

Jemma says...

SIX at once is a bit excessive. And have you thought about the health risks?

AGONY WITH Jemma Henley

Age 25, 30G-26-32, from Streatham, south London



Position of the week

THE BENCH-PRESS

ENERGETIC sex is good for the upper body as well as the love muscles.

This move allows the gentleman to determine the rate of the rogering while at the same time strengthening his arms, while madam enjoys maximum penetration.

Dear Jemma,

MY best mate is older than me and has a daughter of 18 who's a right filthy sort.

With her perfect body she's got all the blokes lusting after her.

Last month she asked me to give her some driving lessons at an old disused airfield. She suggested meeting at the end of her lane as she was supposed to be staying in to do some college work and she didn't want her dad to know.

We had barely got out of first gear on the airfield when she did an emergency stop, turned to me and said: "I'm bored with this. Do you fancy a f?"

She didn't wait for an answer, took off her top and placed my hand on her fantastic pert breast. Then she peeled off her knickers and spread her legs wide to show me her fanny.

We got out of the car and after exploring her with my fingers I slipped her a length.

She's now cleared it with her dad for me to give her some more lessons but if they all end up like this I see trouble ahead. What do you think I should do?

SD, Suffolk

Jemma says...

I SEE a big crash ahead. Get into reverse now!

Squirty cream is lickin' great

Dear Jemma,

I'D never enjoyed giving blowjobs but now I can't get enough – thanks to whipped cream.

It began a couple of weeks ago when I went out with my new fella for dinner and I ordered a banana split.

I was teasing him by eating the banana in a suggestive way and I told him that I'd eat anything covered in cream.

He knew what I meant and the next time he called round he brought a can of the squirty stuff.

I invited him to show me what he had on the menu and he grinned and dropped his pants.

I must say I was well impressed with the size of his banana.

Lips

I slipped out of my dress and dropped to my knees. His cock was standing to attention so I squirted the cream along its length before wrapping my lips around it.

The cream tasted delicious when mixed with his manly scent as I licked and sucked.

He was so hot that the cream started to melt as I slurped and licked at his burning flesh.

I encouraged him to return the favour by spreading my thighs and putting a mound of cream on my clitty and telling him to enjoy his meal.

For the next 15 minutes or so he lapped at my soaking pussy and I came over and over again.

By the time we were both satisfied, there wasn't a single squirt of the cream left.

A couple of nights later we were in his car when he pushed my head down to his lap and unzipped his flies to reveal his massive hard-on.

But all I could think was that the last time had been so good I didn't want to eat it without a topping.

We drove to a late-night store for a big tub of ice cream.

I scooped out a handful and smeared it on his manhood giving him an ice-cold blowjob.

Now it's an essential part of our regular foreplay and I can't imagine giving him a blowjob without it.

TR, Herts

Jemma says...

YOU'D better keep an eye on your weight.

Dear Jemma,

THE other night I was having a beer on the patio when I saw my neighbour trampolining in the nude on her back lawn.

She's in her 40s but still a looker and I was soon hard at the sight of her star jumps.

Anyway, she caught sight of me and beckoned me over.

She lay me back on her trampoline with my prick in the air and attempted to bounce up and down on it.

Needless to say it wasn't long before I spunked. I'm thinking of buying a trampoline now for me and the wife to try.

What do you think?

DR, East Yorks

Jemma says...

SOUNDS like a lot of fun.

ON THE PULL!

BRIGHTON is often referred to as the gay capital of Britain but that doesn't mean its streets aren't packed with horny women looking for a good old-fashioned straight shag!

The south coast resort's pubs and clubs are chock-a-block with girls looking for a good time – just ask Kelsey and Fiona.

The party-mad pair enjoy nothing more than boozing, bonking and comparing notes!

'I am amazing at blowjobs – it's like having my own superpower'

LAST SHAG

KEELEY: So mate, are you on the pull tonight? When was the last time you got yourself a bit of action with the fellas?

FIONA: I'm well up for a shag later – it's been ages! The last time I got laid was on my birthday over a month ago. I was hammered and ended up snogging a bloke on the dancefloor at the end of the night. We didn't even make it back to mine – we did it up against a wall in an alleyway on the way home! It was rough and ready, but it was fun! How about you? Are you up for some action tonight?

KEELEY: We'll have to see who we bump into. I've been shagging a bouncer from one of the clubs on and off for a while. We're more like f buddies than anything serious but he's great in the sack. I hope we see him later – I'd love to drag him back to mine again! He's massive, and he really knows what he's doing. Last time we did it he made me come three times before he even shagged me! He's bloody amazing with his tongue!

OUTDOOR SEX

KEELEY: So, you've just said you did it in an alleyway. Have you done it in any other weird places?

FIONA: I've got a bit of a fetish for outdoor sex actually. I love the freedom of it – it feels uninhibited and wild – like sex should. I love the risk of getting caught too, that's the best bit about it. I've done it in fields out in the countryside, in parks and even on a golf course. But my favourite time was in the high grass on the top of Hampstead Heath in London. I was on a weekend away with my ex and we went for a picnic. Before we'd even opened the hamper I'd whipped my knickers off, pushed up my skirt and was riding him like mad. It was amazing, I could hear people all around us but they couldn't see us because of the grass!

KEELEY: That does sound like fun! I got down and dirty at Alton Towers once – it was hilarious! A few of us from work had gone together. There was a lad there that I'd fancied for ages – we'd been flirting for months and that day we were all over each other. We peeled off from the group and found a deserted spot in the middle of the park. It was the bit where hardly anyone goes because it's a massive walk from one end of the park to the other. We started kissing and I was so turned on I pulled his cock out and started noshing him off. I was on my hands and knees and he was stood up – he was loving it. What we didn't realise was that the cable cars were going overhead! Everyone could see what we were up to!

FIONA: Ha ha, you dirty girl! What did you do?

KEELEY: Well, I finished the job at hand, so to speak!

BLOWJOBS

FIONA: Do you like giving blowjobs then?

KEELEY: God, yeah, I'm amazing at it! It's like having my own special superpower! RI girl! Ha ha ha. I've always enjoyed it, right from the first time I did it to my first boyfriend. Just looking at a cock gets me wet, so when I've got one in my mouth it drives me wild. I suck it hard, I suck it fast and I always swallow. I've even taught myself to deep-throat over the years – it's the best feeling ever. Tell me you love it, too – how could you not?!

FIONA: I prefer the guy going down on me if I'm honest. I will give a guy a blowjob – but only so he'll lick my pussy. I can't get enough of that. Seriously, if a guy goes down on me and he knows what he's doing, I'll come in seconds and I can have multiple orgasms. I don't mind sucking cock, but they get a better blowy from me if it's during a sixty niner!

ANAL SEX

KEELEY: What are your thoughts on a bit of backdoor action?

FIONA: It's pretty bloody fantastic if you do it right! I've had it up the wrong 'un on many occasions – and I really enjoy it. Just lube the guy up, relax and play with your clit at the same time – it's an incredible feeling. One of the best sex sessions I've ever had was with a guy who loved bum fun. He took me from behind, and then used a dildo on my ass. I was playing with my clit at the same time – God, it was mind blowing! He ended up shooting his load all over my arse cheeks!

KEELEY: You're a girl after my own heart, Fi! I really enjoy anal sex, too. It's got such a stigma about it, but it's just so bloody pleasurable if you get it right. I really like it when a guy licks around my bum hole and then slowly eases his cock in. After a few minutes I like him to really go for it. I love it when a guy comes in my ass, too – that feels really dirty and properly gets me going! I'm getting turned on just talking about it now!

SEX TOYS

FIONA: God, you can tell we've had a few drinks talking about bum fun! Ha ha. What about when you're home alone – do you have any sex toys?

KEELEY: I haven't got any! I've never had the guts to walk into a sex shop and buy a vibrator and none of my exes have ever bought me one. Maybe I need to man up and go and get one! To be honest, I've always been happy using my fingers. I watch porn on my mobile too, or read dirty stories. I love a bit of self-pleasure – I just don't have any tools! Do you?

FIONA: Yeah, I've got a few. I mainly use them when I'm having sex with guys though. When I'm on my own, I might get my clit stimulator out and have a play with that – but I've never fancied messing about with a dildo on my own. It's just a bit cringe – I prefer to go out and pull!

FIT CLUB WITH SUSIE SUMMER

STRETCH OUT YOUR SEX LIFE

EXERCISE those palms and knuckles in a different way, boys – because it's time to BOX your way to a fitter body!

Boxing is a great form of cardio fitness – and you don't need a punch bag or a willing friend to do it.

If anything, it's better to go it alone because it means there is no risk of cauliflower ears, a flat nose and black eyes, which isn't an attractive look for anyone.

Let's face it, no woman wants to shag Sloth from The Goonies!

So, I'll be talking you through the art of shadow boxing – something we can all do in front of the mirror to help us feel like Rocky Balboa.

First, I want you to increase your heart rate, so get out and find a hill or a steep road because I want you running up and down it.

If you live in the world's flattest area, then a normal jog or jumping jacks will do. But you MUST warm up first.

A lot of boxers do a bit of skipping to get their muscles working and you can get a proper rope from your local supermarket. So there's no excuse not to.

When skipping or doing jumping jacks lift your feet no higher than two inches or you will just tire yourself out! Your warm up should last a good 10 minutes.

Boxers need to keep their heart rate up because they have many rounds to compete in, so set your timer at three-minute intervals.

A good idea is to do circuit-style training, which include push-ups, jumping jacks and sit-ups. Do one minute of each until the three minutes is up. Now set a further three minutes on your timer and get doing some burpees.

And no this isn't a windy belch! Lower into a squat position and place your hands in front of you.

Place your hands on to the floor and kick your feet back so that it appears you are in a push up position, then quickly kick back into the squat and jump as high as you can out of the squat.

That's one rep. So do each one as quick as you can for one full minute. You still have two minutes left of your three-minute timer here so once you've done the burpees, I want you to do one minute of high-knee lifts then a further minute of alternate side kicks – again, as fast as you can manage.

As it's a boxing-style workout we have to throw some punches with some simple yet effective shadow-boxing techniques.

Keeping your feet moving at all times do two full minutes of upper cuts.

It's a good idea to now set your timer to two-minute intervals.

Once the two minutes is up do a further two minutes of jabs then another two minutes of hooks! You should really feel the burn at this point, especially in your calves. A powerful core is essential so a good 10-minute workout on abdominals will have you looking reem in no time!

Try finding a bar that you can hang from and lift your knees to your stomach to really help strengthen that inner core.

The plank is another very effective way to give you a strong core, along with sit-ups and crunches.

Either way this workout will give any gym rat a run for his money and my aim here is for you to bag the hottie instead of them!

MOTTO OF THE WEEK: "Get working on those reps and she'll soon whip down her kecks!"

KING JOHN

Gosden to grab Leger again

SATURDAY ST LEGER TIPS
BY STEVE MULLEN

JOHN GOSDEN can keep up his amazing St Leger record with rising star EXCESS KNOWLEDGE.

The trainer has won three of the past six runnings of the season's final Classic and can make it a fab four on Town Moor.

This colt has got everything you need to win a Leger. Gosden has taken his time with the son of Monsun and it can pay off here.

He has had just the two starts this season. First up, he was an encouraging third in decent company at Sandown.

That was over a 1m2f trip that is definitely on the short side. He followed that with an eyecatching effort when second in the Group 2 Gordon Stakes at Glorious Goodwood.

He relished the step up to 1m4f that day and he got the worst of a barging match inside the final quarter-mile.

With more luck in running, he would have overturned the neck deficit at the line.

The horse that beat him that day, Cap O Rushes, is a solid each-way chance at around 16/1.

He ran a stinker at York in the Great Voltigeur last month but the ground was much too quick for him that day and he'll be much more at home on this more testing surface.

But it would be a surprise if Excess Knowledge didn't improve past him, expecially as this 1m6f distance should be right up his street.

Some bookies are still offering 4/1 and, considering Gosden's record in the race, that looks very generous.

One horse that may not be taking his St Leger chance is Galileo Rock.

Trainer David Wachman confirmed last night that the ground was a big worry for his hopeful.

He said: "Galileo Rock will be declared for the Irish St Leger and a decision on which race to go for will be delayed until Friday evening

"I want very much to run Galileo Rock in the Ladbrokes St Leger because of its prestige, prizemoney and the fact it is confined to three-year-olds."

Last to come first in Essex

TONIGHT sees the semi-finals of the Romford Puppy Cup live on RPGTV, without question one of the biggest puppy competitions of the year.

Early pace is one thing you need to be successful around the Essex venue and Landed At Last has this in abundance.

He has a 4.64 sectional on his CV and that is nothing short of remarkable. Peter Goodfellow's puppy can book his place in the final in style with a trap-to-line success.

Ballymac Marine took the heats in impressive fashion and see no reason to desert him now – I expect more of the same in the second semi-final.

In the third semi, Jaytee Seville is on the end of a shocking draw, moving from T1 to T5. It remains to be seen if this talented youngster can handle it but I am prepared to stick with him.

Billymatt goes in a sprint. He ran well at Nottingham on Monday and his home patch can see him get his head in front once again.

A cracking card live on RPGTV that features the final of J.B. Riney MBE Anniversary Cup Final over 714m.

It looks a showdown between Short Stroll and Teresas Babe. Preference is for the latter but even over this distance the first few strides are all important and Babe needs to come away in her best fashion. If she does, she wins it.

IRISH DERBY FINAL LIVE ON TV

You must take your hat off to Clive Lawrence and his team at RPGTV – they have played a blinder and the ETS Irish Derby Final will be shown live on the show tomorrow.

The Irish classic is worth 125,000 euros to the winner and is due to be run at 21.12.

Regular readers will know I have been on about Kereight King owned by Tony McCoy for some weeks but he has a shocking draw for the big one. If you put a gun to my head I'd now pick Cabra Buck purely on the draw.

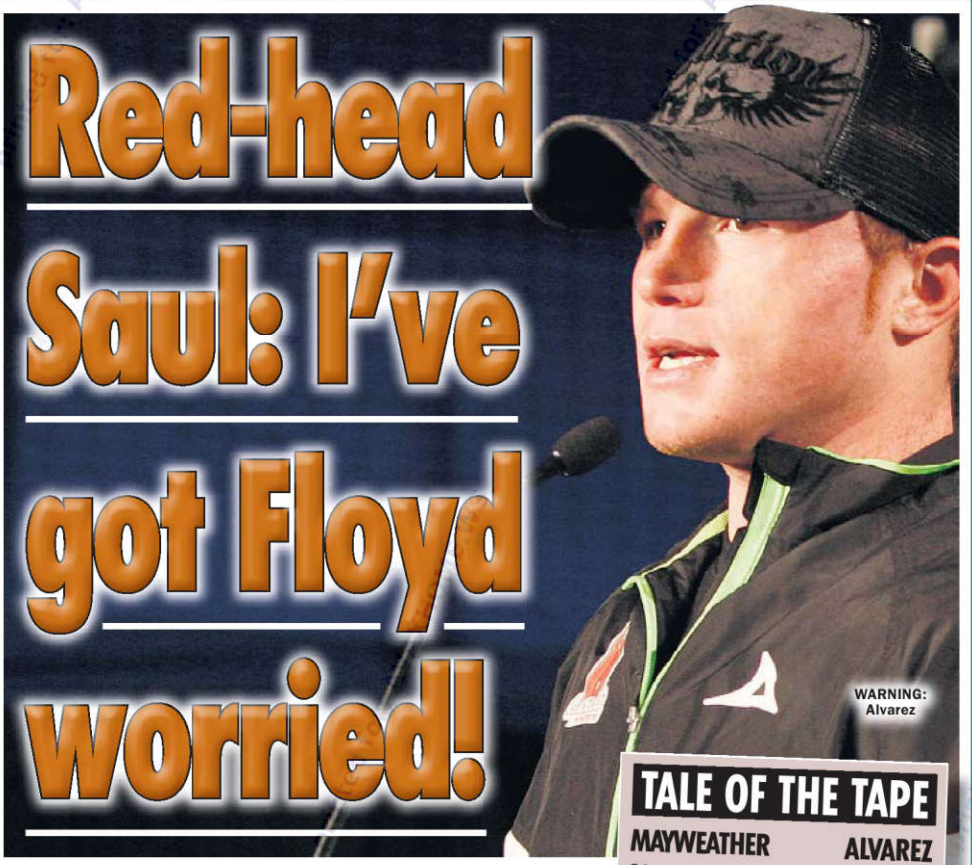
Red-head Saul: I've got Floyd worried!



WARNING: Alvarez

SAUL "CANELO" ALVAREZ believes Floyd Mayweather is taking him lightly ahead of their massive £100million clash in Las Vegas on Saturday night.

The flame-haired Mexican will be defending his WBA super and WBC light-middleweight crowns against the sport's biggest superstar in boxing's richest contest ever.

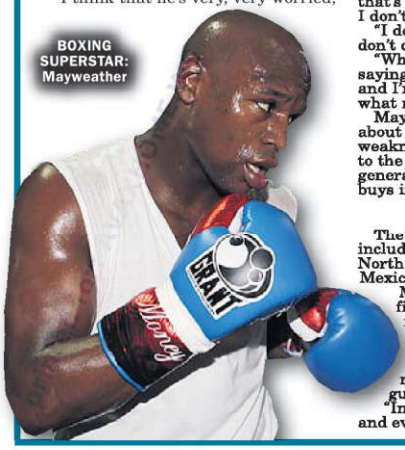
"I think that the way he's talking he's underestimating me, but at the same time I think that he's worried," said 23-year-old Alvarez.

"I think that he's very, very worried, but he's always been like that. He's always been a talker and that's the kind of person he is, but I don't care.

"I don't care what he's saying. I don't care what he's thinking.

"What I care about is what I'm saying and what I'm thinking – and I'm controlling it and that's what matters to me."

Mayweather, 36, has refused to talk about Alvarez's strengths and weaknesses throughout the build-up to the fight that is expected to generate TWO MILLION pay-per-view buys in the US.



BOXING SUPERSTAR: Mayweather

Idol

The build-up has been colossal, including a two week tour that crossed North America and stopped off in Mexico, where Canelo has idol status.

More people in Mexico watch his fights on telly than the national football team and the nation will stop when the first bell rings at the MGM Grand Garden.

Mayweather, 36, said: "You've never seen a guy 44-0 versus a guy 42-0.

"In Mexico he's a young rock star and everybody that they put in front of him he was able to go out there and do his job.

"He's done it in a tremendous fashion. He's a good, strong, solid boxer – and I mean, it's a very intriguing match-up.

"Even if I wasn't a boxing fan, I would want to see two undefeated fighters at the top competition against one another."

Size and youth are stacked in Alvarez's favour, but Mayweather is a once in a generation boxer and the finest defensive craftsman I have ever seen in the ring.

Alvarez will make him work, but after 12 rounds Floyd is a likely clear points winner.

CANDIDATE: Strauss

STRAUSS IN FRAME FOR TOP ECB JOB

CRICKET

ANDREW STRAUSS will decide in the next two weeks whether he wants to succeed Hugh Morris as the England and Wales Cricket Board's managing director.

Former dual Ashes-winning captain Strauss is an obvious candidate to replace Morris, who resigned to rejoin Glamorgan last month shortly after England had beaten Australia for a third successive time in Test series.

Strauss has admitted that the high profile vacancy at the ECB merits his serious consideration – and he is giving it just that.

"One of the things you've got to be very careful with when jobs like these become available is to understand the actual job properly," said Strauss.

"I've obviously seen Hugh Morris do parts of his job, but not the whole job.

"I'm looking into it, but they're decisions that need to made over the next couple of weeks.

"I'll think quite long and hard about whether it's the right time and the right job for me."

Strauss, 36, retired from all cricket a year ago and passed the England Test captaincy on to Alastair Cook.

Beamers

He said then he would take his time before plunging into a long-term new career.

He has since tried his hand at broadcasting as a TV commentator during this summer's Ashes.

"I'm very passionate about the game of cricket and want to contribute to it," added Strauss.

Ben Stokes has been reprimanded by the ECB after he bowled a pair of beamers against Bangladesh A last month.

The all-rounder was pulled from the attack by the umpires while on duty for the England Lions in their three-match 50-over series.

The 22-year-old, who is part of England's senior side for the one-day series against Australia, was handed a fixed penalty that will remain on his record for two years.

WIGGINS FURY OVER FROOME STAGE ATTACK

CYCLING

BRADLEY WIGGINS felt that Chris Froome "stabbed him in the back" during a crucial stage of his 2012 Tour de France victory, according to former Team Sky general manager Sean Yates.

Froome's unplanned attack on stage 11 to the Alpine ski station of La Toussuire four kilometres from the end prompted Wiggins (above) to send Yates a text message offering to quit the race.

Yates said: "He was upset and felt like Froomey had stabbed him in the back."

It had been agreed Froome would attack only in the last 500m.

Yates adeed: "Brad's mental state was always fragile and that psychological blow could have been a knockout one."

"IT was a five-a-side game played by 22 players."
– Bristol City boss Sean O'Driscoll fails to do the maths

CHANT OF THE WEEK

NORTHERN IRELAND fans taunt Portugal's Ronaldo with endless choruses of...

"You're just a cheap Gareth Bale"

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING...

IT'S been revealed that in order to secure his signature, Arsenal offered Mesut Ozil £150,000 a week plus image rights.

Which works out at about... £150,000 a week.

DON'T LAUGH...

GOOD to see Kyle Walker has apologised for his inappropriate use of nitrous oxide.

It's clearly no laughing matter.

10 great unanswered questions in football...

FOOTBALL is full of mysterious questions. Here are 10 that definitely need answering sharpish...

1 Those cars parked behind the goal during England's match with Ukraine. Was one of them a taxi for Ashley Young?

2 Was the Moldovan goalkeeper's performance last week the funniest comedy show ever seen on ITV?

3 What was it that first attracted Fifa to the billionaire Qataris?

4 Is Wayne Rooney's cut forehead the first angry-looking gash he's ever had on his face?

5 Is James Milner the only neither-footed player in the world?

6 Is Prince Abdullah bin Mosaad bin Abdulaziz Al Saud the big name that Sheffield United fans have been crying out for?

7 If winning the Champions League is worth £50million, does winning the Europa League get you a £10 WH Smith token and the chance to buy any of the chocolates displayed on the counter for £1?

8 Is the oldest light in the universe the one the builder left on in the Emirates trophy room?

9 Kyle Walker – why do you need laughing gas with a hairstyle like that?

10 If the answer was Joe Kinnear, what the cocking hell was the question?

sky BET CHAMPIONSHIP ROUND-UP

QPR v Birmingham

CHARLIE AUSTIN is determined to break his Championship duck with QPR.

The £4million summer signing from Burnley has gone FIVE games without a league goal this season.

Austin said: "The goals will come, although I don't how. I've hit the crossbar, so maybe I'll shin one in to get off the mark."

Birmingham travel to Loftus Road looking to add to their one win this season.

Boss Lee Clark said: "We have got to make sure everybody sticks together.

"We're not too far away from turning these results into wins."

Bolton v Leeds

BRIAN McDERMOTT has called on Leeds to bounce back from their first defeat of the campaign.

The Elland Road side are keen to make up for the loss to QPR and boss McDermott said: "We've made a solid start with eight points from five games, and we're building to where we need to be."

Dougie Freedman is set to ring the changes for winless Wanderers after their loss at Blackburn.

Left-back Marc Tierney and centre-half Tim Ream are set to return, with Freedman forced to defend unimpressive and under-fire Alex Baptiste.

Freedman said: "It's been difficult for Alex, but he's a good professional."

Ipswich v M'boro

KEI KAMARA hopes his Boro debut isn't held up by red tape.

The Teessiders' new arrival from MLS side Sporting Kansas City is keeping his fingers crossed his work permit comes through before Saturday.

The 29-year-old Sierra Leone striker said: "I just need to get the work permit so I can join the boys and get playing."

Mick McCarthy refuses to panic after just four points from the first five matches ahead of back-to-back home matches against Boro and Yeovil. The Ipswich boss said: "It's still very early days so far this season."

N Forest v Barnsley

NOTTINGHAM FOREST are hoping their high profile will help them sign Chelsea wonder-kid Nathaniel Chalobah.

The midfielder could even join the Reds before the weekend as they are set to pay more of his £40,000 a week than Watford have offered.

Barnsley chief exec Ben Mansford has ruled out new signings before Saturday's clash.

He said: "In terms of loan players, we're happy with the squad we've got, so long as they perform to the maximum of their capabilities.

"And I don't think anybody has been banging on the door to take any of our players out."

Pressure can Fox it up for Latics

LEICESTER boss Nigel Pearson says the pressure is on Wigan ahead of their meeting at the King Power Stadium after labelling them promotion favourites.

"There is an expectation level on them as a club because of the strength that they've got," Pearson said.

"They will be one of the sides challenging for the top."

Latics chief Owen Coyle says Callum McManaman's return from suspension to face the Foxes will be a major boost for his side.

He said: "We've missed Callum these last three matches.

"To be able to bring him back in is, for me, just like signing a top player."

Leicester v Wigan

INCE ASKS FOR TIME NOT CASH

PAUL INCE wants time at Blackpool – rather than money.

The ex-England skipper has never spent more than a season at a club.

But he wants to go the distance with the Seasiders.

Ince said: "It's a year here, six months there, so it would be nice to get past two years.

"The chairman may not always support me financially, but he'll always support me as a manager and that's what I want."

But Eunan O'Kane has warned Ince that Bournemouth are raring to go at Dean Court tomorrow.

The midfielder said: "The break has given those players who needed the chance to top up their fitness levels."

B'mouth v Blackpool

MEE WANTS CLARET GLEE

Defender to end 34 years of derby failure

BEN MEE admits he owes Burnley one as they look to end more than 30 years of hurt against rivals Blackburn.

The Clarets go in search of their first win over the old enemy since 1979 with Mee still haunted by his career-low red card at Ewood Park in March.

Mee's early bath forced Sean Dyche's men to try to hang on to a slender lead – and it looked like they'd pulled off mission impossible until Rovers favourite David Dunn levelled five minutes into stoppage time.

Ex-Man City youngster Mee is desperate to end Burnley's long winless run in the 100th Turf Moor derby.

He said: "The red card left me low and it's been in the back of my mind.

"It will make me play better. That was the first Burnley-Blackburn derby I'd played in and they have a different feel to them."

Gary Bowyer played down fears Jordan Rhodes is set to miss out for Rovers.

The in-form Scotland star has hit four goals in two games, but returned early from international duty after breaking a bone in his hand.

Clash

Bowyer expects his goal-getter to be fit, and he said: "I've spoken to Jordan and he seems fine, so we're not too concerned.

Both clubs called for calm ahead of the big clash. In a joint statement, they said: "We ask for all fans to respect each other and make sure the game will be remembered for the action on the pitch."

Burnley v Blackburn

Nige feels pane until window opens

NIGEL ADKINS wants Reading to keep in the running for promotion until the transfer window opens again.

The Royals have made a mixed start to the season and went three league games without a win before beating Yeovil.

Boss Adkins (left) admits there will be more defeats on the way – but he can bring in players in January to get the club back to the Premier League.

He said: "The Championship campaign is tough and mentally you have to be right.

"If you look at teams that get promoted they can lose quite a lot of games and still go up.

"It shows you have to respond to defeats and grind your way through the season.

"For me, the object is making sure we are in the race in January, then the transfer window opens and can we put ourselves in a position to win the race."

Brighton travel to the Madejski on Sunday and Stephen Ward reckons Reading's style will suit the visitors.

He said: "Now we might play against a team which is a bit more open and that might make it a bit easier for us to control the game.

"Hopefully playing against teams like this will make our game a lot more expansive."

Reading v Brighton

Sunday, 1.15pm – Live on Sky Sports 1

Sheff W v Yeovil

SHEFFIELD WEDNESDAY will be without skipper Anthony Gardner after he suffered a ruptured Achilles.

The 32-year-old is out until next year, meaning Miguel Llera will partner ever-present Kamil Zayatte in the heart of defence.

Wednesday have drawn their last three but will fancy their chances against a Yeovil side that have lost their last four fixtures.

Liam Fontaine is set to make his Yeovil debut after arriving on loan from Bristol City.

Defender Alan Tate, on loan from Swansea, is likely to miss out with a hamstring injury.

Millwall v Derby

MARTYN WAGHORN has taken a financial hit to join Millwall on loan from Leicester.

The forward, 24, has waived the right to an appearance bonus to move to the Lions.

He said: "I did it because of my love for the game."

Derby boss Nigel Clough has defended centre-backs Jake Buxton and Richard Keogh.

He said: "We were disappointed with the way we held out against Burnley, but generally we have defended well and not given too many goals away.

"Unfortunately, the two we conceded in the first half against Burnley were as bad as we have conceded for a while."

H'field v Doncaster

JAZZ RICHARDS is set to make his Huddersfield debut against Doncaster.

The 22-year-old full-back arrived on loan from Swansea this week and said: "The manager told me that I will suit the team and he wants me to enjoy myself and do what I do."

Doncaster are set to include Dean Furman and Bongali Khumalo after they were allowed home early from international duty with South Africa.

Rovers boss Paul Dickov said: "We needed to get both of them back as I felt our needs were more important."

Watford v Charlton

TROY DEENEY reckons Watford need to get to grips with being the Championship big boys.

Gianfranco Zola's men lost in the play-off final last season and expectations have now been raised.

Striker Deeney said: "The difference between last year and this year is that we're seen as a bigger club now.

"We didn't go up, so everyone raises their game a bit.

"It's about learning quickly that we're seen as a big fish and we have to make sure that we can live up to that tag."

Charlton have been boosted by Chris Solly's return from a knee injury.

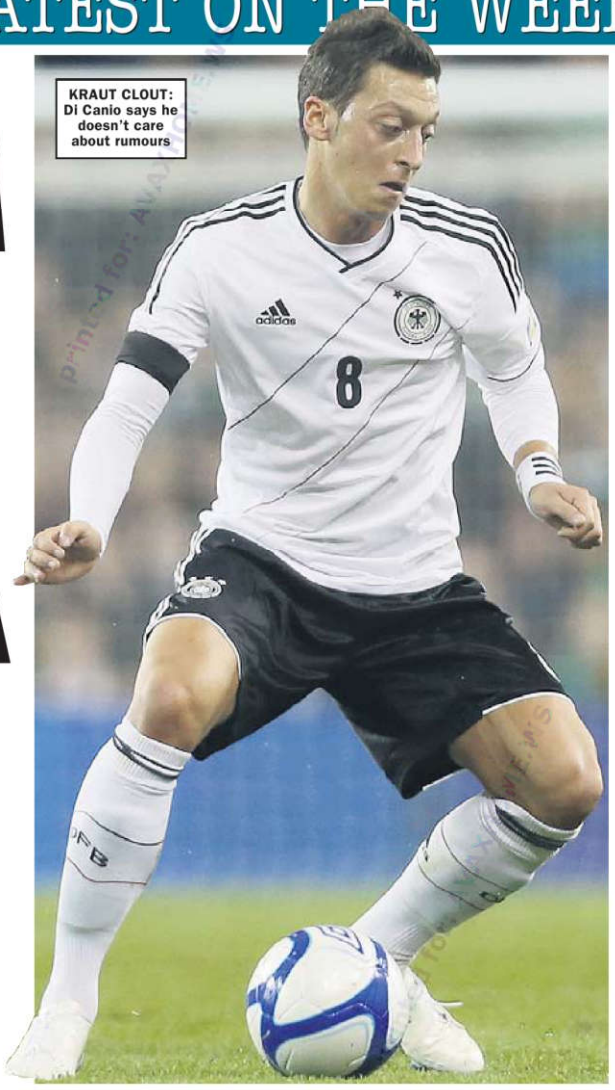
£43M OZIL: I'M A TRUE PRO!



KRAUT CLOUT: Di Canio says he doesn't care about rumours

ARSENAL record signing Mesut Ozil has defended his professionalism after making a surprise exit from Real Madrid.

The German playmaker's £43million move on transfer deadline day was met with disbelief from several former team-mates at the Bernabeu.

Ozil maintains it was the confidence of Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger which proved vital in his decision to leave Madrid – when it became clear he no longer was central to the plans of manager Carlo Ancelotti following the world-record signing of Gareth Bale from Tottenham.

Reports in Spain have questioned Ozil's off-field behaviour. But the 24-year-old insisted he would not let speculation affect his fresh start in London.

"I don't want to say anything bad about Madrid, I had three wonderful years there," said Ozil.

"I have great friends there. We achieved a lot with the club and won trophies. That is why I don't want to talk a lot about it.

"You can see by the reaction of the fans and the players that they didn't understand the move, but this is football.

"People who know me know how professional I am and the past years, you can see how many games I played – 159 games.

"If you are not professional in your life, then I don't think you can play that many games.

Nightmare

"All the rumours, I don't care about them. I have a new task here, I am just looking ahead.

"I am in London now. We have big goals here and we will work very hard to reach these goals.

"I will have wonderful years at Arsenal. Hopefully, I will win many trophies and stay healthy and this what I look forward to."

Paolo Di Canio insists Sunderland aren't fit to drop.

Fans fear the Black Cats' nightmare start to the campaign is a hangover from a gruelling pre-season.

Sunderland have just one point on the board from three games, with their next three home Premier League matches pitting them against Arsenal, Liverpool and Manchester United.

Di Canio's squad had just one day off in over a month after returning from their summer break as they battled double and triple daily training sessions.

But the Italian boss claims that's not the root of their problems and insists the players will benefit in the long run from higher levels of fitness.

Skipper John O'Shea is banned, while striker Ji Dong-won is set to be axed after his horror show in the 3-1 defeat at Crystal Palace.

Steven Fletcher and Jozy Altidore are pushing for starts up front and Di Canio said: "High fitness levels are all-important if you are to maintain quality for long periods of the game and for a run of games consistently."

Clarke fears loaning out rising star Berahino

STEVE CLARKE admits he is reluctant to send wonder-kid Saido Berahino out on loan.

The West Brom striker, 20, scored a hat-trick against Newport in the Capital One Cup and followed that up by banging in two goals for England Under-21s in the international break.

But with Matej Vydra, Nicolas Anelka, Stephane Sessegnon, Scott Sinclair, Morgan Amalfitano and Victor Anichebe all arriving in the transfer window, the Baggies' attacking options are congested.

Berahino is only just back from a knee injury – and Clarke is worried about how best to plan his immediate future.

"We have to manage him properly – that's what we get paid for," said Clarke.

"Hopefully me and the medical staff can make the right decisions for Saido and he goes on to have a great career in the game – hopefully for West Brom.

Incentive

"The emergency window is open until December but I want to keep him around the squad – he deserves that for now as he's been good for us."

Damien Duff has been offered the incentive of a new Fulham deal.

The winger, 34, is set to become a free agent when his current contract runs out at the end of this season.

But Cottagers boss Martin Jol insists the Ireland international could still have a future at the west London club.

And he has told Duff he can expect to extend his stay if he can prove there is plenty more left in the tank.

Jol said: "If he can stay fit and work hard – sometimes he works too hard – he has to relax a bit because he wants to be a good trainer.

"Damien is a true professional. What we will do for him is give him an extension if we feel he can play for another year."

LEAGUE OF HIS OWN: Mourinho led Terry and Co to success in his first spell

We'll win Mour with Jose back

TERRY HAILS TITLE MAESTRO BOSS

Everton v Chelsea

Saturday, 5.30pm – Live on Sky Sports 1

JOHN TERRY credits Jose Mourinho with uniting the Chelsea squad after last season's upheaval.

The Blues were guided to Europa League success last term by interim manager Rafael Benitez.

But the Spaniard proved a divisive figure and only a handful of senior players spoke out in support of their ex-boss when Benitez left at the end of the campaign.

Mourinho's arrival was welcomed by Terry and the rest of the Chelsea old-guard who worked under the Portuguese in his first spell at Stamford Bridge.

And the centre-back is convinced the upbeat mood has been shown on the pitch.

Terry said: "We are looking fit and very much together and Jose brings that.

"It is us against everyone else and I think that is what made us when he was here before and we are very much the same again.

"His man-management is excellent and he makes people want to play for him.

"He has it spot on. If there was a managerial manual he would tick every box.

"We are delighted to have him back. He's come home and all the players feel the same."

Mourinho's side have come through one test so far, clinching a hard-earned point against Manchester United at Old Trafford.

And they face another tough challenge when they face Everton tomorrow.

Chelsea have lost on three of their last four league visits to Goodison Park.

But with David Moyes no longer in charge of the Toffees, Mourinho's men will be confident of improving that record.

The Blues will go into the clash two points behind leaders Liverpool.

But with Brendan Rodgers' side not due to face Swansea until Monday, Mourinho's side could find themselves top by tomorrow night.

Terry is convinced this will be one of the tightest title races in years.

The defender said: "Between the four or five big teams it probably will go to the wire.

"But with what we know about Jose and what Jose knows about the Premier League that will make the difference."

Roberto Martinez says the season starts now for Everton as they look to chalk up their first win.

But the Spaniard insists he is not concerned by their start and believes his side are ready to spark into life.

"As soon as the window closed it was a fresh start for us," Martinez said.

"It feels like the season starts now. We have done good things in the past three games but we are still catching up with points."

Martinez reckons young midfielder Ross Barkley (left) will be his usual level-headed self despite his time away on England duties.

"You can imagine he's really satisfied and excited," Martinez added. "But he never gets carried away and nothing fazes him."

LAMBERT'S LANDMARK HAS SAINTS ON MARCH

By MIKE McGRATH

RICKIE LAMBERT'S amazing season will have another memorable moment on Sunday.

The Southampton striker hit the headlines recently by making a goalscoring start to his long-awaited England career.

And against West Ham this weekend he will make his 200th appearance for his club.

It has taken him just over four years to clock up his double century – missing just TWO games since arriving in 2009.

And he is aware he needs to keep scoring to stay in Roy Hodgson's thoughts.

The 31-year-old got his chance as Wayne Rooney, Danny Welbeck, Daniel Sturridge and Andy Carroll were injured for the last World Cup qualifiers.

Lambert said: "We want Wayne, Daniel and Andy Carroll back in the squad as well.

"They are all great players. All I can try to do is give them another option and try to impress."

The Hammers were linked with Lambert as they looked for cover for Carroll's injury.

But they face him at St Mary's when they look to bounce back from defeat against Stoke before the international break.

Joey O'Brien (above) will be doing everything he can to stop Lambert.

The defender said: "The lads are itching to get that performance out of the system and get back to how we normally play.

"We were disappointed with the performance, it was probably the worst we have been at home since we got back into the top flight.

"The lads were really disappointed but we've had a few weeks off now where we've been training well and we're just looking forward to Southampton."

Sam Allaydyce's men took four points off the Saints last season.

And O'Brien added: "It was a very hard game away to them last year when we did well to get a point, so we know it's going to be a tough game.

"The solid defence comes from the whole mentality of the team.

"From the defenders up to the forwards, the boys work extremely hard and we haven't had very much pressure coming on us in the first three games.

"It would have been nice to get another clean sheet against Stoke but it wasn't to be. Hopefully we can manage to get one on Sunday now."

Allardyce will be without Carroll again but O'Brien reckons the Hammers can cope.

He added: "We have got a couple of injuries but we have a lot of quality players at this club.

"As soon as they get a chance they've got to take it."

JACK TELLS PELLE TO UNLEASH HIS ROD!

JACK RODWELL says he is ready to take his chance for Manchester City this weekend if he is named in the side to face Stoke.

The 22-year-old midfielder is yet to feature under Blues boss Manuel Pellegrini this season but admits as soon as he gets his chance he'll grab it with both hands.

"I've been training hard and I'm feeling great," said Rodwell. "But I'll just have to be patient and wait for my chance, which I'm sure will come along soon. With the players we've got at this club you have to expect to miss some games – even if I get a run of games and play really well.

"I'd still expect to be rested from time to time because you can't expect every player to play every minute.

"Over the next four weeks we have eight games to play and I'm sure the manager will be using everyone at some point."

BAN PLAN: Cameron

Physical

Rodwell reckons the Potters will not be a soft touch under former City boss Mark Hughes, even though the Welshman has tried to make them a more attractive team to watch.

He added: "Under Mark Hughes they may not play in the same style or be quite as physical as they have been in the past, but I think we'll still have to be at our best to come away with a result.

"It's a tough place to go and, as Cardiff proved, every away game in the Premier League is going to be a challenge because everyone wants to beat City these days."

It is not often a Stoke player believes a suspension can work in his favour – but things are a little different for Geoff Cameron.

The US international was banned from Tuesday's clash with Mexico after being booked against Costa Rica on Friday.

That meant a return to his club four days early.

"There were times last season when I would get back from international games on a Thursday and grab a taxi to get straight into training," he said.

"Luckily, the adrenalin and anticipation would get you through a match for Stoke because it is a big game whoever you are playing and you just have to deal with it."

MALKY OUT TO BURY BELL END

CARDIFF boss Malky Mackay has begged Craig Bellamy NOT to retire at the end of the season.

The 34-year-old striker says he is considering quitting the game, but the Bluebirds boss is convinced he still has a big role to play – starting tomorrow at Hull.

Bellamy has been given the Cardiff armband and Mackay said: "Craig's got plenty of time to make the right decision for him and his family without rushing into anything." Peter Odemwingie is set to make his first appearance for Cardiff since joining from West Brom on deadline day.

Hull v Cardiff

Saturday, Kick-off 3pm

But keeper David Marshall faces a race to be fit after limping out of Scotland's win in Macedonia on Tuesday.

Abdoulaye Faye is ready to make his first Premier League appearance for Hull.

The 35-year-old has missed the first month of the season with a calf injury but came through 68 minutes for the Tigers reserves on Tuesday.

But he will face a fight for his place, with four other fit centre-halves on the books.

Striker Sone Aluko has recovered from a hamstring strain quicker than expected, but Allan McGregor and George Boyd are slight doubts after pulling out of the Scotland squad.

If McGregor fails to make it, former Newcastle keeper Steve Harper will make his league debut for City.

Deadline day signing Gedo is the only player certain to miss out with a foot injury.

Boss Steve Bruce said: "He's done remarkably well but it's still a little bit too early to be joining in."

Hungry Tom still has taste for glory

BACK ON TRACK: Chamakh had a hard time at Arsenal

CLEVERLEY WANTS SUCCESS UNDER MOYES

Manchester United v C Palace

Saturday, 12.45pm – Live on BT Sport 1

TOM CLEVERLEY says his United team-mates are as hungry as ever to bring success to Old Trafford.

The end of Sir Alex Ferguson's 26-year dynasty has seen suggestions the players will start to take their foot off the gas under successor David Moyes.

England midfielder Cleverley pocketed his first Premier League winner's medal last season as United won the title at a canter.

And the 24-year-old insists he and the rest of the Red Devils' squad want to gobble up as much silverware as possible this season.

"Having that first title medal under your belt means a lot," he said, as United's squad prepare for their Saturday lunchtime showdown against Palace.

"It's a relief to get the first medal, but it also makes you determined to win more.

"Experiencing that victory parade is something you want to do again and again and again. It was a very special day which I'll never forget, but I don't just want that to happen once – I want it to happen many times. We've got that taste now and it makes us even hungrier."

Cleverley believes that United's desire stems from the work ethic on the training pitch and admits the players even hate losing at five-a-sides.

"You see that in training every day," he said. "It's always competitive. It can put you in a bad mood if you lose in training.

Intense

"It's the most competitive training around, which makes it intense, sharp and helps you improve."

United boss Moyes will check on the fitness of defenders Phil Jones (ankle) and Rafael (hamstring).

The Red Devils will also assess the state of the gash on Wayne Rooney's head which kept him out of England's qualifiers. Rooney's injury has healed well, although United's medical staff would prefer to give him another week before allowing him to make a return.

Cameron Jerome claims Palace have the firepower to frighten United.

The striker, on loan from Stoke, is keen to link up with Marouane Chamakh and Dwight Gayle.

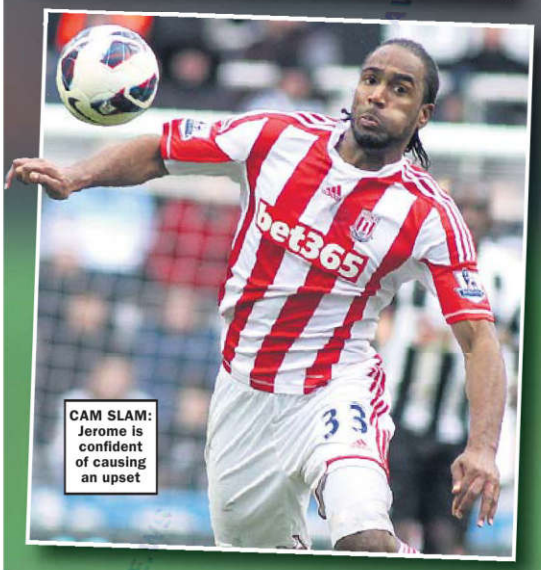
He said: "Marouane had an unfortunate time at Arsenal.

"I thought every time I watched him he did well. From what I've seen of him in training, his attitude is spot on, he wants to work hard and he wants to play.

"He is a great signing for Palace.

"And Dwight is a great success story. He was let go by Arsenal and started again down the leagues.

"Sometimes you need that step back to go forward and now he's been given that chance."



CAM SLAM: Jerome is confident of causing an upset

HOMESICK: Kozak

Rome is where the heart is for Kozak

NEW Aston Villa striker Libor Kozak claims he is already homesick!

The Czech Republic international arrived for £7million from Lazio on transfer deadline day.

He scored for his country against Italy on Tuesday night.

But he admits he is missing Rome and still does not know what his role in the side is.

Kozak said: "I have already spoken with Paul Lambert, but only time will tell what my role will be.

"I will be sure to give my all whenever I am given an opportunity as playing in the Premier League is a dream of mine. But I have to say that I miss Rome."

Kozak was signed as back-up for striker Christian Benteke to prevent the Belgian wonder kid burning out.

But he could become a replacement one day if the big boys come calling for Benteke.

Yohan Cabaye is back for Newcastle – and Alan Pardew couldn't be happier.

Amends

Toon's midfield lynchpin makes his first Premier League start for almost four months after calling off his one-man strike.

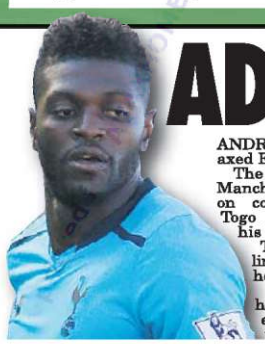
Cabaye is desperate to make amends after failing to seal a move to Arsenal.

And after a luke-warm reception from the Toon Army when coming off the bench to help spark the win over Fulham, Pardew is set to throw the Frenchman in from the start at Villa.

The manager said: "We knew we'd have disruption in the transfer window, but we can settle down now. I sensed something would take place with Cabaye, but we're now looking forward to the season."

Loic Remy is set for a full Toon debut up front, with Cheick Tiote available after a groin problem and Steven Taylor free from suspension.

It leaves Pardew with a welcome selection headache as Newcastle go in search of back-to-back Premier League wins to banish the memory of the 4-0 first-game hammering at Manchester City.



ADE'S AXED – NO KIDDING!

Tottenham v Norwich

Saturday, Kick-off 3pm

ANDRE VILLAS-BOAS has axed Emmanuel Adebayor.

The former Arsenal and Manchester City hitman is on compassionate leave in Togo following the death of his brother.

That meant he wasn't in line to feature in tomorrow's home game with Norwich.

But it doesn't look like he'll get a game after that either as he has been told to train with the kids when he comes back. Villas-Boas said: "At the moment Ade is not with us because we have granted him authorisation to stay up until Monday in his country for personal reasons, so he's not going to be involved against Norwich.

"Up to when I find it appropriate, he will train with the development team." The White Hart Lane faithful are looking forward to welcoming the new faces Villas-Boas brought in with the £85million Gareth Bale cash.

Erik Lamela could make his full debut, although the Argie was a late returnee from the international break and Denmark's Christian Eriksen is also hoping to get the nod.

But Romania defender Vlad Chiriches will have to watch from the stands as he hasn't been given a work permit.

Norwich are managed by ex-Spurs player and coach Chris Hughton, who has seen his preparations disrupted by speculation linking him with the vacant Republic of Ireland job.

But he gave no indication he was about to quit Carrow Road for the Emerald Isle.

He said: "There has been no official approach."

GARY WON'T SHUT UP

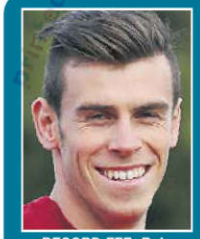
FORMER England captain Gary Lineker insists he has no intention of watering down his opinions on the national team.

The Match of the Day host (left) blasted England's inability to retain possession in the World Cup qualifying goalless draw in Ukraine on Tuesday.

Three Lions manager Roy Hodgson was stunned by the criticism, insisting no apology was needed from England for the 0-0 result.

But Lineker – who won 80 caps for his country – has pledged to remain outspoken.

He tweeted last night: "I will continue to give my honest opinions about football. I believe I'm entitled to. As are we all. You can agree or disagree. All good."



RECORD FEE: Bale

BALE'S IN A RUSH TO BE REAL DEAL

By TREVOR WILLIAMS

IAN RUSH has warned Gareth Bale he will need to hit the ground running following his world-record transfer to Real Madrid.

Bale, 24, who could make his bow for the Spanish giants at Villarreal this weekend, will now have to cope with the attention that comes with his £8.5million price tag.

Rush understands the challenges Bale will face, having spent a season with Serie A side Juventus between his two spells with Liverpool.

The former striker was signed for a British record fee by the Italian club, and knows an instant impact is required to win over supporters.

Rush said: "A move like that is a massive adjustment and it is vital you make it as quickly as possible.

Instant

"He has not had any pre-season games and he needs that.

"The problem is when you become the world record player – the same thing happened with me at Juventus – it is the first impressions they will take.

"So I hope the media out there give him a bit of time as it might take him two or three games to get going, but sometimes in today's world it is about that instant impression and I hope he will be OK with that."

Rush (below) added: "We know Gareth will give 100 per cent and that will get them onside.

"Everyone knows he has the skill but fans really respond to players who give their everything for their club – it goes a long way."

DON'T MES WITH US! Ozil predicts great things under Wenger

OZIL CLAIMS HE CAN END TROPHY WOE

By IAN WINROW

MESUT OZIL is convinced he can mark his first season in England with a Premier League winners medal.

Arsenal's £42million record signing will make his debut at Sunderland on Saturday.

And the former Real Madrid man is convinced it can mark the first step in a bid to end the Gunners' 10-year wait to be crowned champions.

Ozil said: "Of course we can challenge for the title – this is one of the biggest clubs in the world. I had a very good time in Madrid but I have made the next step, I'm in the strongest league in the world.

"I know how successful Arsenal have been. This is the right step for me."

Arsenal boss Arsene Wenger admits he was surprised Madrid were prepared to let the 24-year-old go.

He said: "I don't know exactly what happened inside the club in Madrid. Was it becasue when they bought Bale they already had Isco and they had to let somebody go? I was surprised, yes."
